Honors Make Old Casey Weep

"Too old" for super-efficient New York Yankees, ex-manager Casey Stengel wipes away tears after being honored last night at New York baseball writers' dinner. The "Old Perfessor" was fired Tuesday by Yanks to make room for younger manager. In his 12 years as manager he won 10 pennants and seven world series.—(AP Photofax.)

Typhoon Flips Freighter

TOKYO (AP)—Mountainous waves churned up by typhoon Mamie overturned and sank a 650-ton freighter Wednesday off Kochi, 450 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Green to UN:

Slash Red Tape

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada demanded Wednesday that the United Nations slice boldly through the oceans of red tape on disarmament and get down to business on a scientific basis.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green asked the 99-member UN political committee for a broadened attack on disarmament based on progress already made in a 10-nation committee which hit the rocks last June.

SMALLER POWERS

"The ideas of middle and smaller powers—as well as those of the nuclear countries—should be invoked in this strugle to save humanity," said Green.

The Canadian foreign chief urged the UN to go beyond British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West scientific committee to meet first and prepare the ground for political leaders.

SWISS SUGGESTED

He pressed for the appointment of such a committee—or committees—and also stressed the need for a parallel committee to be appointed by the 99-member UN disarmament commission in an advisory capacity.

Green also proposed a neutral chairman for the 10-nation committee—he said a Swiss would be ideal—and he held out the possibility, without explicitly saying so, that so-called neutralist nations should take part in disarmament negotiations.

REPEATS THREAT

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin repeated the Russian threat of a walk-out Wednesday.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth declared:

"We will not walk out of this committee in any circumstances, and we will not be intimidated by a Soviet threat to do so."

School Trustee Says:

Unfair for City to Keep Finest Teachers in B.C.

Pay Demands 'Avaricious'

By IAN STREET

Trustees last night termed Greater Victoria teachers' demand for salary increases averaging 12 per cent "outrageous and avaricious."

Teachers' representatives, however, showed no indication by the end of a 90-minute negotiating session that they are willing to revise their original figure downward.

SECOND SESSION

Trustees during the second session of the negotiations made no counter offer on salaries. The two parties went on to discuss other clauses in the contract until the session ended.

Kenneth Leeming, chairman of the board's salary committee, said bluntly trustees felt no increase in the basic salary scale for local teachers was justified at a time "when economic conditions in B.C. are not as healthy as they might be."

FAIR, JUST

He said the present teachers' salary scale, established by due and open process of arbitration and accepted as a "fair and just distribution," was considered by the board to be "quite adequate."

Teachers' spokesman V. N. R. Sewell said the school board in the past has encouraged teachers to improve their qualifications and now must "reward" teachers for having done so.

52 PER CENT

He pointed out that at present 52 per cent of Victoria teachers have full university qualifications. At the secondary level, 57 per cent of local teachers have the highest professional qualifications recognized by the department of education — more than any other district.

"This policy of having highly qualified teachers has paid good dividends . . . Victoria students won seven out of the last 10 Governor - General's Gold Medals," said Mr. Sewell.

KEEP BEST

"To continue this level of achievement it will be necessary to keep the best teachers and draw the best teachers to Victoria."

Mr. Leeming said he knew why highly-qualified teachers didn't go to other districts "where they could get more . . . they like living here and are willing to accept a more modest scale in order to enjoy the many advantages Victoria has to offer."

EMBARRASSING

He added: "How embarrassing it would be to all the other school boards in the province if we went up to the salary maxima . . . they would have no teachers at all."

Board chairman W. C. Gelling said he agreed "we should not stress the fact that we should have the finest teachers in B.C. . . . in all fairness to the students in the rest of the province."

RESENT ATTITUDE

Mr. Sewell retorted: "As a taxpayer and the father of four children I rather resent your attitude. Trustees should want to have a very good roster of teachers in Victoria.

"It vexes me, not as a teacher, but as a parent. I don't think we should stand back and let the other districts take all the best teachers."

Contempt Case

Gaglardi Pays $1,000 Fine

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi was fined $1,000 and a U.S. contractor was sent to prison indefinitely Wednesday for wilful contempt of court.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris handed out the sentences for contempt of a court order he issued a year ago in a tangled legal case involving money owed by a contracting firm which did work for the highways department.

Clyde Thornton of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, was ordered to prison until he "purges himself of the contempt." In effect, he must pay $25,516 which the original order found his firm owed.

FILED APPEAL

Mr. Gaglardi paid the fine and then filed an appeal. Thornton is expected to file an appeal and seek bail today.

The justice said both men were guilty of "wilful contempt." Mr. Gaglardi had "aided and abetted" Thornton in violation of the order and Thornton and his firm "stood to gain" from the contempt.

"As for you, Gaglardi, your offence is an extremely serious one, but you did not personally gain in this and that is to the good," he said.

He had taken into account that the minister acted on legal advice in sending a cheque. But he criticized Mr. Gaglardi for acting on this advice "in face of a court order."

Mr. Gaglardi "permitted his subordinates to ignore the court order in favor of carrying out the 'practice and policy' of his department."

SEATTLE MAN

The contempt charge was brought by Burton Glazier of Seattle, who had obtained the order $25,516 of funds held by the B.C. government for Union Contractors Ltd. be paid to Montreal Trust Co. as receiver. Thornton was treasurer and vice-president of Union Contractors, which had a contract for a highway project near Revelstoke.

Instead of sending the money to Montreal Trust, the highways department sent $75,000 to Thornton's bank in Bonner's Ferry.

Mr. Justice Norris said Thornton was present when the order was made a year ago, yet failed to notify his bank at Bonner's Ferry not to accept the money or forward it to the trust company.

Clause in Columbia Pact

B.C. May Be Able to Sell Extra Power Back to U.S.

* * *

CCF:

Keep BCE Out

CCF leader Robert Strachan said yesterday that the distribution of Columbia River power must not be put in the hands of the B.C. Electric Co.

"We must also ensure that the benefits of this public power are not lost by an attempt by Wenner-Gren and the B.C. Electric to pool and export public and private power as being the only means whereby the Wenner-Gren promoters can make millions from stock promotion," said Mr. Strachan.

Distribution of the power by the B.C. Electric would "rob the people of the benefits brought about by public development of the Columbia."

The CCF leader said his party had said all along that the Columbia could be developed to produce cheap power under public ownership and the release of the Columbia report "vindicated our stand."

Provincial government will be able to "export" some of the power received under the proposed Columbia River agreement and will almost certainly do so in the initial stages of the $450,000,000 development. (See full details Page 3.)

Lands Minister Ray Williston said it was a matter of either selling the power in the U.S. or "giving it away" and that such an arrangement would continue until all the power could be utilized in B.C.

SOME OPPOSITION

The minister also expressed a fear that while the proposed agreement, details of which were announced yesterday, was "the best possible deal for B.C.," there might be some spirited opposition to the proposals in the U.S.

As payment for this, the U.S. will make available to B.C. 50 per cent of the extra power generated south of the border.

POWER BENEFITS

A clause in the proposed agreement says that, subject to the authorization of the U.S. and Canada, "portions of the power benefits to which Canada is entitled under the treaty may be disposed of within the United States."

This, in effect, would enable B.C. to sell power to the U.S.—a move strongly opposed by the CCF, opposition which argues that once power is exported there can be no subsequent turning back because new industries in the U.S. depend on the extra power.

Mr. Williston said utility districts now operating on the Columbia would not be happy about having to give half their extra power to B.C.

"This looks just wonderful on paper but it's not finished yet by a long shot," said the minister.

Kennedy Beats Nixon For New York Cheers

NEW YORK (CP) — John Kennedy received a tumultuous ticker-tape welcome by 1,000,000 New Yorkers Wednesday while Richard Nixon was comparatively ignored as he moved in from a lukewarm rally in Delaware.

"I believe in equal ticker tape," said Vice-President Nixon with a grin when told that Democratic mayor Robert Wagner had offered Senator Kennedy the city hall steps for a political speech. Nixon, fighting hard for the crucial New York vote, said he hopes Wagner also will arrange a ticker-tape welcome for him in two weeks, just before the Nov. 8 U.S. presidential election.

Police commissioner Stephen Kennedy said the crowd that turned out for the senator appeared to be the biggest since Charles Lindbergh's triumphal return to New York after his solo trans-Atlantic flight in 1927.

Disaster Toll Near 6,000?

DACCA (Reuters) — Survivors told Wednesday how "mountainous waves" swept away children, homes and cattle in East Pakistan's cyclone-tidal wave disaster 10 days ago.

Their stories gave rise to fears that the death toll might double earlier estimates of 3,000 killed.

Gambler Stuns Court Calls Dice Every Time

MACK ALLEN IN ACTION

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—An accused gambler put on a 20-minute display of dice rolling in court Wednesday to show how he can make the dice come up with any combination of numbers he wants.

While the jury and Judge John Culberton watched, Mack Allen, 38, approached a table with a blanket on it and said confidently:

"I can stand here all day and roll number seven."

Allen not only threw sevens, but made the dice come up with other numbers he called out in advance. But he didn't explain how he did it.

The demonstration was in support of his contention that he did not rob Ralph McKenzie, a truck driver, but won $70 and his watch in a dice game. Decision was delayed.

Montreal Mudslinging

Mayor Blew Smoke in Queen's Face!

Ta-Tas to Television

MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign for the municipal election next Monday developed into a mudslinging contest Tuesday night at public meetings of two mayorality candidates.

Ex-mayor Jean Drapeau, who heads the Civic party of Montreal, said Mayor Sarto Fournier "has no manners" and insulted royalty and other dignitaries who had visited Montreal.

He said Sen. Fournier, who ousted him in the 1957 election, had "blown smoke in the face" of Queen Elizabeth during the 1959 Royal Visit to Canada and "made ta-tas to the television audience" while dancing with her.

Sen. Fournier had done nothing in the administration of the city's affairs "except to participate in scandals."

His comments were by way of a reply to Sen. Fournier, who called Mr. Drapeau "the worst hyprocrite in all history" at a public meeting Monday.

WHY not a provincial aquarium in Victoria? Now is the time to think about the idea.

The government is planning a new provincial museum. An aquarium would go with it perfectly.

A Victoria man, Ted Calder, a few years ago suggested an undersea tunnel of transparent plastic, with fish corrals on each side. This would enable people to walk on the sea floor and observe fish in a natural setting.

It would take an engineer to decide whether such a plan was safe and feasible. If the undersea tunnel were built—perhaps across a small bay—it could be coupled with an aquarium building on land as well.

There are several reasons why Victoria would be the ideal place for a provincial aquarium. It's the capital. It's a fishing centre, a port and a university town. It's a tourist centre. Tens of thousands of visitors pass through the city each year.

By charging a small fee for admission, and including a restaurant with a view of the undersea world, the management might make the aquarium pay for itself.

However, that would be an extra, unexpected blessing. The aquarium would be worthwhile for its own sake, as tourist bait and as a place for children and grown-ups—both serious students and sightseers—to learn about life underwater.

Is Victoria trying to drive shoppers away from the downtown area? A reader thinks so.

"I parked my car on the city parking lot at 5.30 p.m. on a Friday and put a nickel in the meter, thinking I was safe for the day," he said. "When I came back at 7.30 I had a parking ticket.

"It's true that the sign on the parking lot, if you looked at the words in small print, had a warning that the meters were operating on Friday night.

"But why do it, anyway? I drove home in a bad mood, my wife telling me off on the way home. And we decided we wouldn't do our shopping in town any more, if we could help it. There are plenty of shopping centres where we can go."

Back from New Zealand is Frank Hillier, Junior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hillier of 866 Verdier Avenue, Brentwood. He's an engineer for a Vancouver firm which is building a pulp mill in New Zealand.

Frank's return cheered his mother, who is ill in St. Joseph's Hospital. His father, 44 years a conductor on the old E & N Railway, has also gone through a long siege in hospital. He now works as commissionaire for the Daily Colonist.

In his railway days, Frank, Senior, lived in Duncan. He rode the steam-driven passenger trains that used to puff into the Duncan station twice a day. The arrival of a train was an event.

Now a single passenger-carrying Budd car sneaks into town, going up and coming back, the last relic of the big passenger trains on the old E & N.

However, it's still a comfortable and scenic ride.

Frank, Junior, is back with his wife and children in Vancouver. He'll be saying goodbye to them soon when he returns to New Zealand for another stretch.

In December he will be going for a time to Germany, where the machinery for the New Zealand pulp mill is being manufactured.

Frank has travelled a long way since he used to live in the house opposite to ours on McKinstry Road, Duncan.

Saskatchewan

Doctors Continue Battle

REGINA (CP) — President Dr. A. J. M. Davies of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons said Wednesday the college will continue its opposition to a CCF pre-paid, government medical care proposal.

A resolution to this effect passed in camera by the college will be contained in a brief to a 12-member advisory committee at present investigating medical care needs of the province.

The Leader-Post says the delegates argued about their official stand on state medicine earlier Wednesday at the closed meeting.

The newspaper says indications point to the college directing opposition to compulsion of the government plan.

The doctors expressed concern about the possibility of government domination of the medical profession.

Some of the delegates, the newspaper says, suggested that since the people of the province elected a government which had compulsory medical care as a main plank, the profession should go along with the decision.

Priest Warns:

'Slavery' Ahead For Doctors

REGINA (CP) — Father Athol Murray, head of Notre Dame College a Wilcox, Sask., was applauded Wednesday by the annual convention of the Saskatchewan College of Physicians and Surgeons after he delivered a blistering attack on socialism.

He warned the doctors they were going to become slaves of the state.

The priest asked his audience what is happening to western democracy when a group of people or a legislature can impose something which is negative to the individual.

Father Murray said members of the college were becoming nothing more than civil servants who have lost their individuality.

The state threat to individual freedom involves every aspect of life, he said.

Your Good Health

Surgery the Only Answer For Severe Hemorrhoids

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What about the different methods of hemorrhoid treatment, cutting, cauterizing, etc.?—T. H. C."

I think you mean injections, rather than cauterizing. Injections to shrivel the distended veins that constitute hemorrhoids is a possible treatment in some mild cases. Sometimes, however, the injections can be as irritating as the hemorrhoids themselves. In severe cases, surgical removal is the only successful method. The operation is not comfortable at the time, I grant, but it gives more complete relief later. Surgery also affords an opportunity to correct fissures if they exist.

Dear Dr. Molner: The top tip of my ears extend out. Can an operation correct this? —E."

Any good plastic surgeon can give you expert advice on the subject, so consult one as to feasibility and cost. The point I want to make is that a person with protruding ears is inclined to be more conscious of them than is warranted. I don't know why. But other people, looking at you, don't even notice them.

* * *

"Dear Dr. Molner: In your discussion of mastectomy (surgical removal of the breast) you did not discuss the developing of an abnormally large arm on the same side as the surgery. Why does it occur in some cases and not others? Is there any relief or cure?—V. M."

It's one of those "sometime" things. It results from obstruction to the lymph flow, or blood flow through the veins, in certain instances. Or sometimes, usually when an extreme amount of tissue has had to be removed, subsequent formation of scar tissue is the cause. It cannot always be predicted or prevented.

In some cases, physiotherapy has been helpful. Sometimes an elastic sleeve covering the whole arm is used, just as an elastic stocking is sometimes used on a leg.

"Dear Dr. Molner: My husband has had a very small malignant tumor burned off in his bladder. What is the likelihood of recurrence, and how soon? Do statistics show any cures for bladder cancer? —Mrs. P. H."

I can't guess at the prospects in any given case, when I haven't had any chance to examine the patient. You'll have to ask your own doctor. But I can tell you this: With cancer of the bladder, the ones found early show a very high rate of cure; the ones found late (after the cancer has penetrated well into the wall of the bladder) have a poor outlook. And the hard battling is in the ones caught at in-between stage. From the information you give, I would judge that your husband's was found quite early.

Columbia Development

U.S., Canada Agree On Gigantic Scheme

Twice as Big Project As Seaway

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada and the United States agreed yesterday on the basis for joint development of the Columbia River basin, the biggest project of its kind in North American history.

A formal treaty next year will clear the way for hydro and flood control development along the 1,200-mile international river totalling as much as $1,000,000,000, twice the cost of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

The latest—and key—step in some 16 years of discussion and bargaining came in an exchange of notes between U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter and Canadian ambassador to Washington Arnold Heeney. By them, the two governments accepted a negotiators' "progress report" on Columbia development and agreed that a 60-year treaty based on it should be drafted in time for ratification by Congress and Parliament next year.

LIKELY IN 1961

Justice Minister Davie Fulton, who headed the Canadian side in negotiations over the past eight months, said it was "likely" that actual construction would start in 1961.

Under the agreement, Canada will build three large storage dams in the British Columbia interior at Mica Creek on the Columbia's big bend, the outlet of the Arrow Lakes near Castelgar and the outlet of Duncan Lake in West Kootenay. This country will foot the entire bill—more than $450,000,000.

MAJOR BENEFITS

The three dams, to be constructed simultaneously and completed by 1970, will provide storage of 15,500,000 acre feet of water, 8,500,000 of it within five years. From its use to regulate the now erratic Columbia flow will come the major benefits.

Hydro plants operating downstream on the American section of the river will be able to increase their annual output by some 13,800,000,000 kilowatt hours. In addition, the storage will permit flood control that will save the United States abut $130,000,000, over the next 60 years.

CANADA GETS HALF

Canada, through a major bargaining victory in the International Joint Commission, will get half these downstream benefits—the power in kind through an international grid system and the flood control in cash payments.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker, who released the report, said its recommendations, when implemented, would be another example of Canadian and American "good sense" in resource development.

"It is my belief that implementation of the recommended plan of development for this great natural resource will not only be a fine example of co-operation between neighbors but will provide an important additional stimulus to the Canadian economy," the Prime Minister added.

Financing of Canadian construction — $458,422,000 counting both at site work and transmission lines — will be shared by the federal and provincial governments. Ottawa has offered to put up half the money on a recoverable basis, but as yet has received no reply from British Columbia to the proposal.

PUBLIC HEARINGS

The financial details are one of the few problems to be cleared away. Others include the actual drafting of the treaty and its important "assured plan of operation," its ratification by the two nations, and the holding of public hearings in British Columbia as a prelude to the issuance of the necessary provincial water licences.

As well as the expenditure on the three dams, there is certain to be large-scale investment on both sides of the border for new power generating facilities. Mr. Fulton said a figure of $1,000,000,000 would be "fair" as a possible total.

A key section in the agreement opened the way for a major construction project on the American side of the border — the long-proposed Libby Dam in Montana.

JUSTICE MINISTER FULTON

McNaughton Wanted More

Columbia Deal Best Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said yesterday the Columbia River deal was the best possible considering that three governments were involved. But the project does not come to the standard of potential benefits to Canada which Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, as head of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, had said could be possible.

Mr. Fulton said Canadian diversion of the Kootenay River into the Columbia, a better all-round scheme, was rejected by the B.C. government on grounds it would cause excessive flooding of farm land.

This opened the way for the Americans to obtain a five-year option on going ahead with the controversial Libby Dam in the Montana stretch of the Kootenay, arguing flood control need. Gen. McNaughton fought Libby as a non-economic use of Canadian water.

Mr. Fulton said B.C. still has to reply officially to the federal offer to pay half the actual construction cost of about $172,000,000. About $114,000,000 out of $458,000,000 will be for transmitting U.S.-generated power from Oliver, near the border, to Vancouver.

B.C.'s total share would be $286,000,000.

Unrepentant Nazi Pays For Anti-Jewish Shout

BERLIN (UPI) — Candy salesman Horst Bruckner was fined $333 for shouting anti-Jewish remarks on a streetcar. Court was told he shouted that the Nazis didn't gas enough Jews. When the conductor called police, Buckner greeted them with a shout of "Heil Hitler!"

UN or Revolt Africa's Fate

TORONTO (CP) — The UN may have to take control of South Africa for a period of 10 to 20 years to prevent a bloody revolution, says author Alan Paton.

He told an audience here he believes there is no "hope at all the South African government will change its heart" about apartheid.

Mr. Paton, an active opponent of apartheid and head of the South African Liberal party, said "a kind of agony" is occurring in his country because of its radial beliefs.

He told of a man who had come home one day to find two government representatives who said they had private information that he had Negro blood.

"So corrupted are we in South Africa that his wife immediately denounced him and his three children now are marked as colored," Mr. Paton said.

U.S. Fights Cuba Squeeze Bans Almost All Exports

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Wednesday took its toughest action yet against the Cuban regime of Premier Fidel Castro, banning exports of all U.S. goods to Cuba except medical supplies and food.

A U.S. spokesman billed the move "not economic reprisal" but rather a reluctantly-undertaken action to defend American businessmen "against the discriminatory, aggressive and injurious economic policies of the Castro regime."

SQUEEZE CHARGE

The state department charged Cuba has deliberately failed to pay $150,000,000 to U.S. business and put a squeeze on U.S. goods, cutting the once-large U.S. trade by more than half.

American shipments to Cuba, running at the rate of $300,000,000 a year, are expected to be cut by about two-thirds.

WELL BEYOND

The economic impact of the embargo, measured in dollars, will go well beyond that of last summer's close-down on U.S. purchases of Cuban sugar.

However, the Castro government will not be hit as hard as it might have been.

RUSHING IN

Dispatches from Havana said Cuba has been rushing in shiploads of U.S. automobile parts such as spark plugs, fuel pumps and carburetors, plus oil refinery replacements and sugar mill supplies.

Export Ban

Good For Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The government officially declined comment Wednesday on the U.S. ban on exports to Cuba but officials privately said more good than harm might come out of it for Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker led a cabinet meeting at which the Cuban situation was understood to have been discussed briefly.

Later, he said he would not comment on the U.S. policy decision or say anything more than he had declared Sunday in Winnipeg — that Canada would not follow the U.S. lead.

Canada has no serious quarrel — diplomatically — with Cuba, although the government has reservations about the apparently pro-Communist trend of Cuban policies under Fidel Castro.

Officials declined to comment on the possibility of Cuba and the U.S. breaking off diplomatic relations. But if that happens, they expect the Cuban Embassy here will be strengthened, and Ottawa will be made a Cuban listening post for U.S. affairs.

Trade With Cuba

THERE is little doubt that Canada's declared policy of continuing trade relations with Cuba is causing much concern in Washington particularly in view of the United States government's application of strong economic sanctions against the Castro regime.

The American decision in placing an all-out embargo on Cuban trade is understandable in view of the seizure of millions of dollars worth of American holdings in Cuba. Some retaliatory move was to be expected.

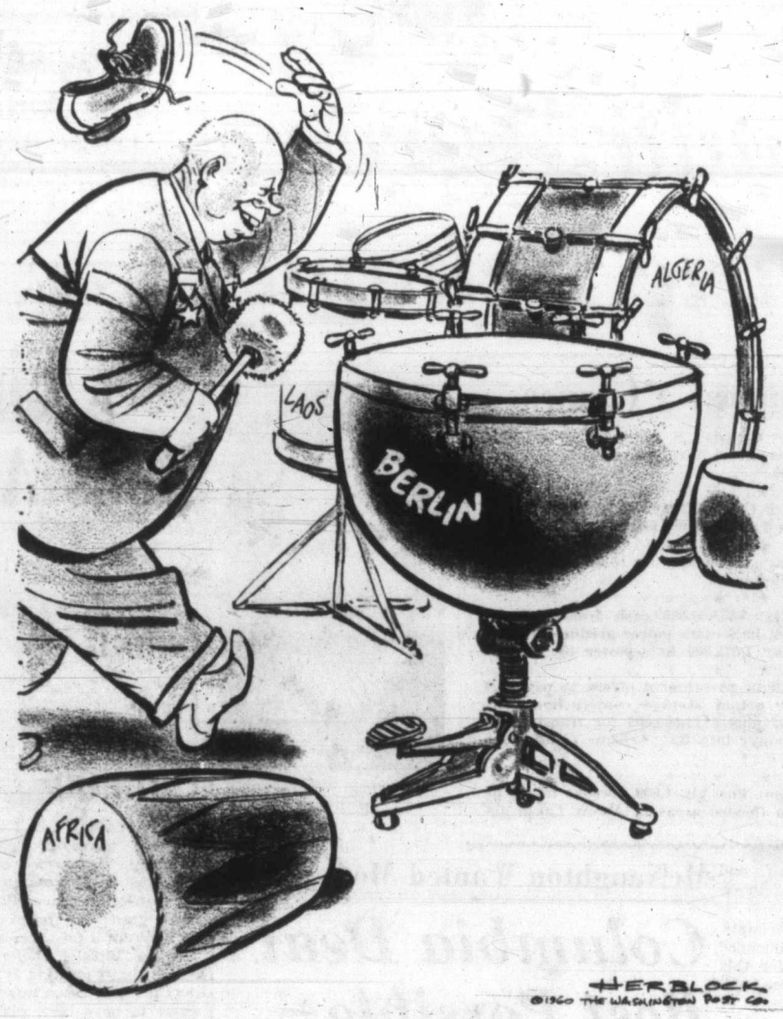
Nevertheless the cold facts are that Canada's refusal to join in Cuban sanctions will remove much of the effectiveness of the American action. As long as Cuba can still obtain the goods and machinery it needs from Canada such restrictions will cause little, if any, hardship to Premier Castro and his people.

The Canadian government's stand is a legitimate one, however. Canada has not suffered at the hands of the Castro administration—in fact the Cuban government appears to be bending over backward to maintain friendly relations between the two countries. Nor was Canada a party to the collective action taken by the Organization of American States against the governments of Cuba and the Dominican Republic. It is also true that the latter nation—now cut off from all trade with other American states—is presently buying oil from Canada.

It would be foolish to suppose that Canada's continuation of free trade with these two countries has gone unremarked by either the United States or the other OAS-member nations and it is to be expected that heavy diplomatic pressure will be exerted.

The effect that such pressure will have may be an indication of which direction our future Latin American policy will follow. It is no secret that External Affairs Minister Howard Green has long favored closer relations between Canada and the Latin republics and is closely studying the merits of Canadian membership in the OAS.

How this latest development and its effect on international harmony will jibe with Mr. Green's major purpose of working toward a lessening of world tension remains to be seen.



"Well, back to the old humdrum routine"

Unwarranted Slur

GENERALITIES are dangerous when applied to racial questions. Magistrate A. C. Sutton of Duncan has aroused astonishment and indignation by his sweeping condemnation of the behavior of boys of Chinese extraction. His criticism appears to reflect prejudice, and calls for retraction not only in fairness to all Canadians of Chinese origin but also for the preservation of that respect which Canadian courts at all levels should be accorded.

In his comments on a case which he heard as judge of the juvenile court there was also the element of absurdity, compounded by apparent lack of understanding of the immigration laws of the country.

In finding a 14-year-old Chinese boy to be delinquent, Mr. Sutton made this rash observation: "If you don't behave the government will send you back to China. Things aren't very good in China."

As a magistrate Mr. Sutton should know that it would be impossible to deport a boy of 14 without deporting his parents or guardians along with him; and if he were Canadian-born no power in Canada could expel him.

To make matters worse the magistrate then went on to traduce all young Chinese-Canadians by indulging in generalities not substantiated by facts:

"Fifty or 60 years ago the Chinese were good citizens. But some of the modern boys are a nuisance and can't be trusted. Quite a few are too cocky."

There are a great many boys of Chinese parentage here, and the low incidence of crime and delinquency among them is one of the many things contributing to the warm respect in which the people of Chinese antecedents are held. It is commonly said, with good cause, that the Chinese are among the best, if not the best, of our citizens.

Apart from that, it would be interesting to know by what Magistrate Sutton would measure the attributes of a "good" Chinese boy. Does he expect the young Chinese, brought up and schooled side by side with boys of the many other races making up Canada, to maintain the menial subservience which used to be expected of house-boys? Fifty or 60 years ago the Chinese brought to Canada to provide cheap labor were not far removed from slavery, and the objects of discriminatory practices which would not be tolerated today.

Does Mr. Sutton sigh for the return of those conditions?

Little 'Hyde Park' Corner

VICTORIA'S "little Hyde Park corner" seems to be getting off to a wrong start. It it is to emulate the soapbox oratorical fashion of London—as was the proclaimed intention—there should be no question of priority. The space should be free to all comers, and at the same time.

A speaker's corner of this nature is not a debate under parliamentary rules, with speakers taking the same platform one after the other. It is a simultaneous business, with each man planting his soapbox where he will, regardless of a rival orator a few yards away.

The chief charm of this type of public forum — for the listener at least—is that onlookers are free to stroll from one speaker to the next according to the entertainment being provided. If they must stand and listen to a procession of speakers from the same soapbox one fears the venture will soon collapse from sheer boredom.

The Socialist Party promoted the idea of a "little Hyde Park corner" but it cannot claim any monopoly rights if the spirit of this venture is to let all and sundry air their views on whatever pet subject engrosses them. It is the variety and spice of verbal rivalry that gives a speakers' corner its validity.

There must be some background regulation. A policeman will have to be on hand to see that no disorder develops, and speakers will have to be careful of the laws of slander. Beyond that the less conformity the better. The ego of each speaker should be permitted a soapbox of his own, simultaneously with half-a-dozen others if that number of orators are straining at the leash. And there should be no need for handbells.

Nearly five acres have been set aside for Beacon Hill's speaker's corner. That should be ample for everyone, no favors asked or granted.

Interpreting the News

In Defence of UN Actions

By JOSEPH McSWEEN, Canadian Press Staff Writer

IT is probably just as well that Soviet Premier Khrushchev wasn't in the United Nations General Assembly to hear Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold's latest defence of UN actions in the Congo.

Hammarskjold's return Monday to a defence of UN policies in the Congo was couched in carefully reasonable terms, but he took sharp issue with Khrushchev and other speakers who have stressed isolated UN actions in the turbulent republic. Principal among these actions were the UN's temporary seizure of Leopoldville Radio and Congolese airports in defiance of now-deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba.

"In my perspective these actions are details in a vast pattern of activity," Hammarskjold said. "Important though they may be in themselves, they are only highly-publicized events which may have occurred when, in the course of political complications of the situation, the activities of the organization, because of the principles which it must maintain, momentarily may seem to have collided with some specific party interests.

Hammarskjold paid ringing tribute to the "nameless" Congolese officials who seek not rule or publicity but merely to serve their country—subordinating themselves to its needs instead of searching for power.

On behalf of UN personnel in the Congo he made this plea:

"Blame them for their shortcomings, if you will; say that they should do more, if you believe that you are entitled to say so; criticize this or that decision they have taken, because in your perspective another decision might have been better, but do no throw doubt on their honesty and seriousness, do not impugn their motives and, especially, do not try to depict them as enemies of the very cause . . . for which they are giving so much and, in worldly terms, as individuals, receiving little or nothing."

Hammarskjold outlined the scope of the UN operation—including everything from providing milk to dredging harbors and opening schools. He named eight organizations operating under the UN.

The UN had been accused of usurping the power of the rightful authorities and "reinstituting some kind of colonialism," said Hammarskjold.

"All these vitally essential services are rendered under the United Nations flag, thus eliminating any risks that they created a dependence of the Congo on any specific foreign powers or that outside elements be permitted to establish what might develop into vested interests in the country.

"They, thereby, effectively help in establishing and strengthening its true independence."

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU would read about the corporal in the Royal Canadian Engineers who slid down a twisted static line to rescue a parachutist trailing helplessly behind an aircraft. It was a fine exhibition of courage and quick thinking in mid-air.

He should get a medal for it, and maybe he will, but it won't be a Canadian one. And if he had been a civilian his chances of being rewarded in this traditional form — everywhere but here, that is—would be scanty indeed.

Apart possibly from a Royal Canadian Humane Association Medal —none too readily bestowed — the Canadian civilian is outside the pale when it comes to decorations for bravery or special merit.

Unlike his counterpart in other parts of the Commonwealth he is ignored by the periodic London honors lists which recognize courage and meritorious service.

This of course stems from the studied aversion by Ottawa authorities of titular honors. It is feared that the social structure would be undermined if Canada allowed its citizens to receive a Queen's reward.

Titles perhaps one can understand, but the negative is carried too far.

Paradoxically too, there are hundreds of Canadians who in their best bib and tucker can sport a decoration; but these were awards given for wartime service either abroad or at home. What a Canadian may safely accept in war—and carry forward into the post-war—he cannot accept in peace.

It is an odd situation.

* * *

The engineer corporal may, therefore, be suitably rewarded for his resourcefulness by an award from London, and one hopes the recommendation wil go forth from Ottawa. He will get no medal from his own country, however; it doesn't have one to give.

Alone probably of all nations Canada has no awards of this kind to bestow. When they get round to framing a new constitution the powers that be might give this some thought.

There are several Canadian decorations extant — the armed forces can qualify for about half a dozen but thes are confined to long service and good conduct in uniform. They do not meet the needs of valor or special distinction.

True enough there is, or at least was envisaged, a truly national decoration designed to reward all citizens of Canada—either military or civilian —for outstanding merit or performance. The warrant doesn't mention bravery but if courage is not meritorious then words are ambiguous.

This was the Canada Medal, struck back in 1943 and formally instituted—but never bestowed. It has been in mothballs ever since, without a single name having been inscribed on its roll.

None of the succeeding governments have ever said why it has been kept out of circulation, and this is a minor mystery to date.

The Canada Medal would at least have enabled this country to recognize unusual virtue among its own people.

It would have had another use. It was supposed also to be given to citizens of other countries—it was instituted in wartime, remember—in reciprocal recognition of the foreign awards bestowed on Canadian troops.

That would have been the return honorable. But no; when it comes to wartime decorations Canada receives but does not give.

There must be a complex at work in Ottawa minds on the subject of medals and decorations.

Reports from Ottawa

ONE of the political oddities in Ottawa is a tendency—carefully nurtured by Conservative publicists, I suspect—to liken John Diefenbaker to William Lyon Mackenzie King.

The prime minister is identified as a student and admirer of King. There is no doubt that the emotional Diefenbaker—which is a good deal of the man—had a personal fondness for his old political adversary. King was a pupil of Diefenbaker's father. King was the first person to send condolences on the death of the elder Diefenbaker. And there is much in King the political genius and King the post-war statesman for any man in Diefenbaker's position to admire.

One would think it would be more fitting that Diefenbaker should be likened to former Conservative premiers. And indeed there was an effort a couple of years ago to identify him as a second Sir John A. Macdonald: just as Sir John A. had the vision of a Canada united from sea to sea by bands of steel, so Diefenbaker had the vision of a Canada thriving on its storehouse of Arctic riches reached by roads fingering northward.

Since the vision dimmed there has been little tendency to continue the comparison of the abstemious Diefenbaker with the brilliant lush who was the country's first prime minister. And there is scant profit in likening Diefenbaker to the grey Sir Robert Borden, or to R. B. Bennett, whose name carries connotations of the Great Depression.

* * *

So Diefenbaker is slowly being portrayed as the ideological successor to Mackenzie King—a man whose name has connotations of political greatness and humanitarianism. This is a little unfair to Lester Pearson—like having a stranger, by devious means, doing one out of one's patrimony. But it is entirely in keeping with the basic strategy of the Diefenbaker party, which is to move away from the right wing position the party occupied under the leadership of George Drew, and into the broad middle of the road that Mackenzie King's Liberals occupied for a quarter of a century.

Pressed by Tory liberalism, the Liberals are to considerable degree in the position of having to choose between me-tooing or moving farther left while there is yet time, before the CCF-Labor "New Party" makes this manoeuvre much more difficult. The question is: where do more votes lie? In holding to the kind of Liberalism that kept the party in power for a solid 22 years, or in mixing in more modern liberalism?

* * *

In 1945 King gingered up his cabinet, bringing in a strong leavening of live wire Liberals: Paul Martin, Douglas Abbott, Brooke Claxton, Lionel Chevrier and Frank Bridges. Many people consider this a stroke of political genius that enabled King to survive the '45 election.

Last week Diefenbaker reorganized his cabinet, bringing in two live wire Tories, Ernest Halpenny and Walter Dinsdale, and two others—Hugh John Flemming and Noel Dorion—whose voltage remains to be tested since the Tory reverses in New Brunswick and Quebec. The reorganization is obviously not yet complete—but neither is an election imminent.

Will the stratagem work as well for the pupil as for the old master? Nobody knows. But it does feed the illusion that in Diefenbaker the country has a latter day Mackenzie King.

The Packsack

Aging Lothario

By GREGORY CLARK

ONE of the sadly comic spectacles of this life is the former Lothario, the ex-bon vivant, shuffling and tottering into his old age. Among my fellow students half a century ago was one who was acknowledged to be the Don Juan not only of the college but of the city. A handsome, swashbuckling young man, he trailed a cloud of girls behind him like a charioteer's cloak. And rumor had it that he was to be seen from time to time dining with actresses. This was before the era in which we are liable to have actresses, or at least radio and TV artists, in our own families: and to dine with an actress was turpitude, sheer turpitude.

I forget now; but it could be we envied him, we more freckled and knob-kneed scholars. In the years following our college days I used to see him from time to time, still glamorous, amorous, gay and festive.

In a department store yesterday I spotted him goutily stumping along amid the shoppers. He had shrunk. His long legs seemed to have hinges in them, and one could almost hear them creak as he lifted them up and set them down. He was trimly dressed in tweed and his hat was rakish, but his neck was now a little too small for his collar. I took his arm and said hello.

"Why, Clark!" he cried gaily. "How you've shrunk!"

Tough with Hoodlums

(From The Toronto Telegram)

THERE will be widespread approval of Magistrate Donald Graham's tough stand in cases involving assaults on police officers. Sentencing a Toronto man to 30 days for attacking three officers, the magistrate warned that, from now on, anyone he convicts of this type of offence can expect a jail sentence.

Our society doesn't tolerate roughing up of prisoners: why should it take an easy-going view of assaults on its own agents of law and order? An officer apprehending an offender is often in effect a man with one arm tied behind his back. He must depend on the authority of his uniform and his office to secure respect.

That respect is undermined when hoodlums can set about officers and yet get off lightly. Once this precedent is established, police-baiting acquires the stature of heroism for hoodlums and their gang molls and the like.

What no one should lose sight of is the fact that the policeman is society's agent, acting on its behalf and dependent mostly on the co-operation of the ordinary citizen. Hoodlums must be taught it just doesn't pay to flout either the law or its officers. If they imagine they can buy their own brand of heroism cheaply, then it's up to magistrates to make the cost prohibitive.

Nixon Policies

Pushed to The Right

By MARQUIS CHILDS

AN observer who travelled extensively with Vice-President Nixon in the congressional campaign of 1958 recalls an incident that throws light on his position at this climactic point in the race for the presidency.

At an early background breakfast for correspondents touring with him he said that in the heat of a contest with pressures from every side he invariably found himself taking stands that were more conservative than his position in fact was. A little later he met for a second breakfast with important contributors to the Republican campaign chest. He is reported to have told them that in the heat of a contest he was invariably pushed into taking stands more liberal than his normal outlook.

Today, as the presidential campaign warms up, Nixon is being pushed rapidly toward the right. Increasingly as he applies such shibboleths as "war party" and "appeaser" to the Democrats and his opponent, Senator Kennedy, he is moving over onto the side of those in the right wing of his party who have always given him his principal support.

* * *

A striking instance of this is his shift on the Connally Amendment restricting American acceptance of the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice at The Hague. President Eisenhower has several times called for repeal of the amendment, as had Nixon. Such Nixon backers as Charles Rhyne, former president of the American Bar Association, have made it a cardinal point in their appeal for the rule of law in the world.

But at the same time the old isolationists, nationalist forces on the Republican right have been sharpshooting at Nixon for joining with those who would sacrifice any smallest share of America's sovereignty to a world court. And so a week ago Sen. Barry Goldwater, the darling of these forces, let it be known that the vice-president had altered his position. This was done through a letter sent to those inquiring about his stand on the controversial amendment.

* * *

It is the kind of letter that lawyers can happily con over in interpreting its possible meanings. The layman, however, will be somewhat puzzled by language that says:

"I believe the Connally Amendment should be replaced by a new reservation which should be so phrased that the declaration will not apply to disputes which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of the United States of America or to disputes involving the national security of the United States of America. With such a declaration we will protect our sovereignty through protections that the Connally Amendment does not give and at the same time strengthen our world position by taking the leadership in indicating our willingness, under proper safeguards, to settle our disputes with other nations through the rule of law rather than resort to force."

But if this is a significant indicator of the shift it is comparatively unimportant when put alongside the way in which progressively Nixon has imputed deliberate appeasement to Kennedy on the Quemoy-Matsu issue. He began by saying that he knew his opponent's aims were the same as his—peace without surrender. With increasing intensity from stop to stop that has become something quite different.

* * *

The vice-president went a long way in that direction when at the rally at Buena Park this week he said: "But we left that policy of retreat and defeat (the loss of China, the Korean War) behind in 1953 and we're not going back to it in 1960 as Senator Kennedy has asked . . ."

Reasons for the shift that is taking place are not hard to find. The prospect is for a much closer race than the Nixon strategists had anticipated. Polls, both private and public, showing a large proportion of Catholics who formerly voted Republican switching to Kennedy in the big-city states have caused acute concern. Some observers believe Nixon's major objective with his growing insistence on appeasement, Korea and surrender is to try to hold these voters and win back the waverers.

Whether it be called realism or cynicism, Nixon's own view of the outlook at this point can be summed up as follows: he believes that roughly 20,000,000 voters are still undecided. Of this total perhaps a million could be classed as "sophisticates." They will concern themselves actively with the issues and one gathers that in any event the vice-president would write them off so far as his own cause goes.

* * *

The other 19,000,000 are his target and they are to be won and held not so much by words, although strong words help, as by the creation of an atmosphere of confidence.

This is a simplified—perhaps an over-simplified—view of the next three weeks as seen from the Nixon watchtower. But as practised by this highly successful practitioner politics is an elemental trade.

'Sadistic' Tongue-Stick Discipline Forced on Boy for Moving Crayon

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trustee Joseph Zuken told the Winnipeg school board Tuesday how a doctor's tongue compressor had been used to punish an eight-year-old boy in King Edward School.

Mr. Zuken gave notice of a motion calling for a superintendent's investigation into the alleged punishment.

"It must be brought to the public now," he commented.

After the meeting Mr. Zuken said: "The time has come when the board has to make it clear that it will not tolerate this sort of sadistic treatment."

He said the victim, a Grade 3 child, was made to hold the compressor in his mouth for 15 minutes. For every time he gagged or dislodged the stick, extra time was added.

The punishment was invoked for petty misbehavior such as removing a crayon from a desk without permission, Mr. Zuken said.

UN Thwarts Congo Raid

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—UN troops intervened Wednesday to prevent arrested followers of deposed Premier Patrice Lumumba from being deported to the Kasai province capital of Luluabourg for trial.

The Congolese army arrested 16 Lumumba supporters in a pre-dawn raid but released several, including two cabinet members, after interrogation. Those still held were described as terrorists who were behind a recent wave of assassination attempts.

STEPPED IN

The arrested men were driven to an airfield on the outskirts of Leopoldville but UN troops stepped in before they could be placed aboard the plane.

"The UN has frequently lent its good offices in the case of arbitrary arrests," a spokesman said.

The 16 arrested included Information Minister Anicet Kashamura and government commissioner for Katanga Jason Sendwe, released on orders of strongman Col. Joseph Mobutu.

CURB WAVE

Drunken Congolese army troops, meanwhile, were reported to have broken the curfew imposed Tuesday to curb a wave of lawlessness in the native section where three women were slain earlier this week in an outbreak of tribal violence.

Reports said the troops broke into a closed bar, ordered the African proprietor out at gunpoint and raped his wife 10 times.

WEEKEND TALKS

Arrest of Lumumba followers was reported to have resulted from Mobutu's weekend talks with President Moise Tshombe of secessionist Katanga province.

Tshombe allegedly told Mobutu he would not deal with an all-Congo government until Mobutu did some house-cleaning in Leopoldville.

Canada Visit

Malayan Leader Arrives

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaya arrived Wednesday to begin his first visit to North America. A cold drizzle but a warm welcome from Prime Minister Diefenbaker greeted the Malayan leader.

Rahman will spend six days in this country, repaying a visit by Diefenbaker in 1958, before moving on to Washington for talks with President Eisenhower. He flew here from London after discussions with Prime Minister Macmillan.

The Malayan premier said he came to Canada to "see, learn and get the feeling of your vast country."

'Wild West Gang' Loots CNR Train

KINGSEY, Que. (UPI) — A wild-west train robbery carried out with sub-machine guns, Wednesday netted six masked men $3,000 in cash and an undetermined amount of mail.

The French-speaking modern day Jesse James gang, armed to the teeth, swooped down on this whistle stop just as the Montreal-Quebec City CNR dayliner was pulling into the station.

Holding stationmaster Paul Guimont, 40, his wife Blanche and their five-year-old son as hostages, the gunmen peppered the engineer's cab with machine-gun bullets as the train was coming to a halt.

Then with almost military precision, the bandits drew a truck alongside the baggage section of the one-unit train, held the occupants of the baggage car at gunpoint and emptied the car of the 15 canvas bags containing the money and mail.

They made their escape in the truck.

Police said the robbery was timed to the split second from the time the panel truck sped into Kingsey and the train enroute to Qubec City approached the town.

Glass Jewels Created In Art Gallery Today

By TED SHACKLEFORD

The frozen fluidity of glass becomes a precious jewel in the strong hands of John Burton of California, who will demonstrate his art in the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria tonight.

His creations—bottles, vases, amphoras, even earrings and touch pieces—sparkle, gleam and glitter with imprisoned colors almost unbelievably beautiful.

DISTANT RELATION

His work can be called glass blowing but it has as much relation to glass blowing as a Michelangelo fresco has to a painted house.

Working with special glass with a high melting point, hot blue flames and metal oxides, Mr. Burton mixes his colors, prepares his colored rods and twines and winds them into finished objects.

Using a glass blow pipe instead of the usual metal pipe, he begins at the neck of a bottle and builds its body, step by step, layer by layer of glass.

His work is unique. Collectors and museums pay up to $500 each for the little bottles and containers he makes. Only he can make them.

CARRYING ON

In his work, Mr. Burton is carrying on the tradition of the master glass blowers of ancient Egypt and the Phoenicians. In honor of them he calls his colored rods "snake thread" glass.

And he echoes the ancient masters even more closely with a patina he gives his bottles through a secret process.

SLOWLY EATING

Only one thing has eluded him—the iridescence of 4,000-year-old glass — but this is caused by chemicals slowly eating into the old glass, leaving refracting surfaces cut into the surface.

Glass has been scientifically defined as a fluid—"frozen" for all practical purposes at normal temperatures — and like his material, Mr. Burton's art is fluid.

PLAN CHANGED

He may begin with a plan, a design in mind, but often the mixture of glass and hot flame determines the final shape.

What he will create in the Art Gallery at 8 p.m. today will depend to some extent on that mixture.

Widow, Private Student Receive Awards Today

Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association scholarships of $100 will be awarded to two prominent Victoria University students at the quarterly meeting of the association at 8 p.m. today.

They are Mrs. Peta-Ann Jackson, mother of three children and widow of water bomber pilot Victor Jackson, killed when his plane crashed near Kelowna in July, and Anthony George Wilden, who qualified for college by taking Grade 13 through private study.

To qualify for the awards, recipients had to be the sons or daughters of war veterans. Mrs. Jackson is the daughter of Group Captain and Mrs. E. A. McGowan of Victoria and Mr. Wilden's father lives in England.

Battered Barber Pulled from Dryer

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI)—A young barber found tumbling around in a coin-operated clothes dryer at a public laundromat was listed in fair condition yesterday at a local hospital.

Police said they were unable to make much headway with the unusual case because the victim, Amos S. Culpepper, 28, was swathed from head to toe in bandages and unable to talk.

It was not known how Culpepper got into the dryer, or who fed the machine the quarter needed to get it started.

Culpepper's screams were heard a block away. His rescuers found him badly battered and burned.

The machine was designed to run for 30 minutes but it was not known how long Culpepper had been inside before he was rescued by two police officers, summoned by startled neighbors.

Robbery was ruled out as a motive in the case when police found money in Culpepper's billfold.

Culpepper's shoes were found spinning in a washing machine near the dryer.

SYDNEY (Reuters) — Prime Minister Menzies of Australia said yesterday the prime objective of Nikita Khrushchev is to destroy the United Nations organization as it now exists.

City Notary Dies at 84

Veteran notary public J. Arthur Wild died in hospital Tuesday after a brief illness. He was 84.

Mr. Wild was B.C.'s oldest practising notary and worked in his office as recently as last Friday.

He came to Victoria from England in 1917 and was an active worker in the Pentacostal movement. His wife Anna Maud died last year.

Laurel wreaths, symbol of victory or merit in ancient Europe, are obtained from an evergreen tree native to the Mediterranean.

Read why this champion loves Milk-Bone

"jolly good chewing without those perfectly beastly bone splinters"

BAZ

Dogs of all breeds and occupations agree that Milk-Bone gives a dog an excellent way to get the fun and vital tooth and gum exercise of gnawing, without a real bone's danger of splintering or upsetting the digestion. They can thank Milk-Bone's firm bone-shape for that. And dog-owners are thankful for the nourishment Milk-Bone gives their dogs—all the important nourishment of milk, meat, bone-meal and vegetables.

Whatever else your dog eats, he needs Milk-Bone to satisfy his bone-hunger. Get Milk-Bone in the size that suits the size of your dog—regular or large.

All weigh-in stations are urged to send in all entry forms for October fish as soon as possible, so that nobody is left out of the final draw.

'Coerced' To Give To Chest?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Labor Council ordered an investigation Tuesday into accusations that four companies are coercing employees into donating to the Community Chest.

Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers said four companies with which his union has contracts have made it a condition of employment for their workers to donate to the Chest, currently conducting its annual campaign.

Hurricane 'Bonanza'

SEATTLE (AP)—Hurricane Donna blew a bonanza to Washington apple growers when it lashed the Atlantic seaboard and helped cut the eastern apple crop.

Latest government estimates show returns to apple growers appear likely to top the $47,000,000 received for the 1959 crop, with the probability the figure will exceed $50,000,000.

Understanding Beats Guns

WINNIPEG (CP) — An American police official says that every day there is less need and justification for the gun and the nightstick in police work.

Howard R. Leary, deputy commissioner of the Philadelphia police force, told a conference on police-community relations that there is "a greater need for knowing and understanding people and their habits."

The gap between what the people say they expect of police and what the public receives deserves close attention, he said. The community can not in righteous indignation blast the evils of the tap room and road house and also permit private clubs freedom from inspection and enforcement.

Neither can a community agitate over traffic fatalities and yet accept "without a murmur" the fixing of traffic tickets and haphazard traffic enforcement.

Police should "think and perform in glass houses," he said. "The community will strenuously support what it sees."

"We must be ready to stop and listen without suspicion to suggestions and, more important, to the criticisms of others," he said. Valid criticism should be "solicited and welcomed" by police.

Earl Shaken by Soho

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI)—The Earl of Craven lived up to his family motto of "Virtue consists in action" when he boldly visited the sinful Soho district of London and emerged somewhat shaken to announce he was "suitably horrified."

As a result of what he saw in the dimly-lighted streets and alleys of London's "naughty mile," the earl demanded that Scotland Yard deal immediately with the "dangerous problem" of vice before it becomes too big for simple police action.

"Round every corner," the 43-year-old earl declared, "appeared the entrance to some club or other seductively-lit and invitingly erotic haunt framed in the pictures of sultry and sexy wenches, each one looking more over-ripe and ready for mischief than her neighbor."

★ ★ ★

A policeman passed while the earl was observing these strip-tease clubs—which have been mushrooming everywhere in London—and the activity of the street came to a temporary standstill. But as soon as the constable passed, the peer witnessed a startling change.

A group of youths with "degenerate faces and long dirty hair," who had been lounging around a lamppost "like interested canines," sprang to life. A woman opened the door of one establishment, the earl said, and hissed an all-clear signal that reminded him of a boiling kettle.

★ ★ ★

He said that in Montmartre and Place Pigalle in Paris tourists were confronted with an "obvious business proposition."

"But in England," he said, "one gets the broader picture of enthusiastic amateurism — vice for the love of vice without the confliction of a battle of conscience. Small wonder that the continentals, and the French in particular, regard English women as the epitome of feminine immorality. Small wonder we are steeped in concupiscence."

The island republic of Indonesia has only one doctor for every 52,000 people.

John D Hails King 'Fiction'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker thinks J. W. Pickersgill deserves a literary award for his biographical study of Mackenzie King.

Mr. Diefenaker said he has read the Liberal MP's book, based on the diaries of the former Liberal prime minister.

"Knowing some of the events that took place I would think Mr. Pickersgill could be nominated for the fiction award of 1960," the prime minister said. "I refer only to the events I know of."

Deer Carcass by Road Costs City Hunter $25

A hunter who apparently didn't want the fruit of his hunting, was fined $25 yesterday in Colwood police court.

Harold Dadswell, 150 Clio Crescent, pleaded guilty to leaving a deer carcass by the side of Maplebank Road. The Motor Vehicle Act prohibits leaving any dead animal within 200 feet of the centre of a highway.

★ ★ ★

In the same court David Leonard Johnson, 128 Wellington, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty under the Game Act to carrying a loaded rifle in his car.

★ ★ ★

In city court Ken Robinson of the Posy Shop, 623 Fort, pleaded guilty through counsel to a violation of the Unemployment Insurance Act and was fined $25. He had failed to produce certain documents within a stated time.

★ ★ ★

Burrell Hatchard, Jordan River, and Reynold Hill, Port Renfrew, were fined $50 each when they pleaded guilty in Sooke court to drinking in a public place—the middle of the West Coast Road near Jordan River. Hatchard was also fined $15 for driving without a licence.

He and crown prosecutor Lloyd McKenzie completed final arguments in the afternoon before adjournment to 11 a.m. today.

Garden Notes

Architecture of Trees

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

I don't think I ever saw a garden without trees that could be considered really interesting. The lack of trees makes commonplace many a plot which would otherwise acquire grace and beauty, yet the misuse of trees has ruined many a promising scene. The worst form of misuse is, of course, the common fault of overcrowding, which leads inevitably to the day when a lovely tree must be mutilated with saw and secateurs.

In choosing trees for your garden, it is wise to keep in mind the architectural form or shape of the tree, the beauty of its foliage and the happy effect of the shadow pattern on the lawn. Actually, these points are more important than the blossoms, for the blooming period is short, but the foliage is with you throughout the growing season and the architectural form will delight the eye the whole year round.

★ ★ ★

There are four basic forms of trees. The standard tree is one with a single trunk and a spreading head of foliage. The bush tree forks at or near ground level. The fastigiate or columnar tree is slim, with branches upraised, and the weeping tree is a drooper.

The standard and bush trees take up the most room. The fastigiate tree is ideal for the small garden, as it occupies little width for its height and gives an interesting architectural effect, but too many of them develop a sombre, cemetery effect. This goes for the weeping trees, too—it must not be overdone.

Fastigiate trees immediately bring to mind the conifers and, as these are all green the year round, they play an important part in garden design.

★ ★ ★

Fletcher's and Elwood's Cypress are probably the best known and both are grand trees, although I have some slight preference for a cousin called Chamaecyparis Lawsoniana erecta viridis. The Irish Juniper is another superb columnar tree.

There are plenty of columnar trees which are not conifers, of course. One only has to think of the Lombardy Poplar, for instance, which is definitely not for the small garden. The best of the lot, for my money, is a lovely Japanese cherry called Amanagowa—actually Prunus serrulata erecta—making a slim pillar of blush pink blossoms. Not very common and somewhat hard to come by is the fastigiate Hawthorn, Crataegus monogyna stricta, a quick-growing and easy pillar tree and a particularly happy choice for the small garden.

★ ★ ★

We have more weeping trees than you can shake a stick at and the most commonly planted is, of course, the Weeping Willow. I may be prejudiced, but I have never been able to warm up to this tree—the thing reminds me too much of graveyards. The weeping birches are better, although Young's variety can grow to quite a size in time.

For a smaller weeping tree, my choice again would be from the family of Japanese Flowering Cherries, either Cheal's Weeping or the weeping Yoshino cherry. An uncommon small weeper which wears a crinoline of scarlet beads in the fall is Cotoneaster hybrida pendula—actually a shrub, but trained in the form of a small standard weeping tree.

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

They'll Remake Everything!

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Yul Brynner doesn't look at all like Errol Flynn and I find it hard to visualize him in the role that started Flynn on the way to fame—"Captain Blood." Yul has signed for the remake.

★ ★ ★

With the huge success of the remade "Ben Hur," you can look for remakes of every successful big picture of the past, but no remake is being planned of the Clark Gable-Vivien Leigh smasheroo, "Gone with the Wind." The original is still filling the theatres.

★ ★ ★

Susan Hayward lost 15 pounds on that liquid diet for the remake of "Back Street." There was a bit of hullabaloo when Susan discovered that one of her scenes in the technicolor film featured gray. She has an aversion to this color, and the upholstery will be changed.

★ ★ ★

I can't blame freckled Glynis Johns for settling for security—with 49-year-old wealthy businessman Peter Henderson. Glynis, a star for many years, not only was unable to save money because of British income tax but also owed a fortune to the government. Her husband will take care of these details and Glynis is giving up her theatrical career.

★ ★ ★

Vivien Leigh will get a handsome young leading man for her movie, "The Roman Spring of Mrs. Stone." John Saxon flew into New York to read the part for director Jose Quintero.

★ ★ ★

Helen Hayes is the choice of Ross Hunter to play the Gladys Cooper role in his movie version of "The Chalk Garden." Helen has seen and read the script and I'm told negotiations are afoot.

★ ★ ★

Nothing on the agenda at 20th Century-Fox for Mai Britt. After the fiasco of "The Blue Angel," Mai was dropped by the studio then later her option was picked up. That was several months ago. I have a hunch the option has been dropped again.

★ ★ ★

With Sir Alec Guinness pinioned for two pictures with Rosalind Russell, Laurence Harvey will star in the movie version of the Guinness hit in London, "Ross," playing the young Laurence of Arabia. America's Sam Spiegel is going ahead with his Laurence, but without Marlon Brando who doesn't see himself as the champion of the Arabs.

★ ★ ★

Marilyn Monroe's "Let's Make Love" is not the anticipated box-office hit that was expected. Twentieth-Fox biggies believe it will eventually pay off the cost and make money. But nothing like her "Some Like It Hot" with Tony Curtis and Jack Lemmon, which made millions.

★ ★ ★

The Screenland-Silver Screen polls have Debbie Reynolds in front, with young Sandra Dee beginning to crowd her. And, right near the top, is TV star Connie Stevens. Elizabeth Taylor, still among the Top Ten, has never quite recovered from the "home-wrecker" epithet bestowed on her when Eddie Fisher left Debbie to marry Liz. Seems that teen-agers have a Puritan streak.

★ ★ ★

Dan Dailey's pretty dancing partner, Camille Williams, who is more than 10 years younger than Dan, refers to herself as his "mother." Camille is a brunette and Dan says he marries only blondes . . . Camille might be the exception.

★ ★ ★

Lucille Ball's choreographer-director, Michael Kidd, for her "Wildcat" Western play, was asked, "Have you had any Western background?" to which Mike smiled and said, "I was born in a corral on the lower East Side, spent my boyhood on a ranch in Brooklyn and studied engineering in the City College bunkhouse."

Britons Gamble

Drunk Tester Drink Referee

LONDON (Reuters)—A new twist in the drive by British road authorities to cut down drunk driving accidents is running afoul of the Englishman's traditional gambling instinct in northern England.

Reflex testing machines placed in 14 of the 167 pubs in the town of Carlisle by the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents are being used by gambling Britons as much to referee bets over their drinking capacity than to decide whether they are able to drive.

★ ★ ★

The machines take three-penny coins. When the coin has been put in the slot, the "contestant" waits for a red light to go out.

When the light snaps off, the drinker has .12 of a second to punch a button. If he can push the button within that time limit, his money is returned.

★ ★ ★

But if the drinker can't push the button in time, he loses his money and should walk, or at least drive slowly, on the way home. The distance the coin drops determines the state of the driver's reflex on a scale ranging from poor to excellent.

The machines time only the speed of the operator's reactions, not the amount he has had to drink.

★ ★ ★

Britain's crack racing driver, Stirling Moss, failed to react quickly enough in one out of three attempts after a few drinks.

But a gnarled old Carlyle resident chuckled over his pint of beer and said he had made "a little money" on the gadget by a fortunate combination of quick reflexes and a high resistance to alcohol built up over the years.

★ ★ ★

At the Caledonian pub on Carlisle's main road, a running contest of reflexes has developed between the railroadmen and truck drivers who hang out there.

The idea is gaining in popularity and some persons have asked the Royal Society if they can buy machines for use at private parties.

Russian Visit

80-Year-Olds Going Home 7,000 Miles

Not too many people in the over-80 age bracket would consider taking a 7,000-mile journey to visit their families but a pair of Russian-born Canadians, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moskaluk of Victoria, begin the trip back to their homeland this week.

They're not much worried that Communists took over the country five years after they left—the important thing for them is to see their families.

Waiting for them in their home town of Tomachow in the Ukraine are a daughter, three grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

They came to this country 46 years ago, taking out naturalization papers in 1933. They farmed in Saskatchewan until 1949 when they retired and moved to Victoria.

They have a daughter in Victoria, Mrs. Sona Pawlyshyn.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

This morning I threw away a pair of old shoes. The event was fraught with sentimental memories and filled with a sense of inexpressible sadness.

I had bought these shoes way, way back in 1946. That's the year it must have been, because we moved here that year and I bought them soon afterwards from the local shoe repairman who'd laid in a supply of army surplus shoes.

They were black shoes, blucher style, with plain, unadorned tips. They always looked to me like navy officers' shoes and I always thought of them as navy shoes, somehow.

I remember clearly that they cost $7.50, which was a tremendous bargain even in those days.

Loyal Service

They lasted 14 years. From 1946 until this lovely fall morning of 1960, they've been with me, giving me loyal, ever-ready service all through the aftermath of the Second World War, the Korean War and the cold war. They were almost as old as my son Hugo, who was born in 1945 and now has bigger feet than mine.

During the early years I didn't wear them much. I'd bought them on impulse because they were such a bargain, and they had to wait until I was through with my best pair of black shoes. When those finally had to be demoted, I fell back on my patiently waiting navy shoes and wore them in earnest, with a distinct feeling of pride.

The years went by, some permanent creases appeared at the top, and somehow they acquired a small, slight cut, not too visible but a scar nevertheless.

However, they were aristocratic shoes of flawless, indestructible classic beauty, and I wore them, and wore them and wore them. Other shoes came and went but my navy shoes were always there, ready to look as good as ever on my feet, as long as I treated them to a good shine from time to time.

Always There

Somewhere in the mid-fifties I relegated them to service around the house and retired them from frontline duty. Then I took to wearing loafers for those secondary purposes. But the loafers wore out, one pair after another, and the navy shoes were always there—as good as new with an occasional pair of new heels or soles.

And so it went for 14 years—during which, as far as my shoes were concerned, I lived like a millionaire who can be thrifty and wear expensive things that last forever, in contrast to a poor man who has to be satisfied with an endless succession of cheap items that cost him 10 times as much in the long run.

Yesterday I looked at the shoes with clear, realistic eyes and saw that the end had come. They weren't worth new heels or new soles or even a new shine. They were cracked in dozens of places and just plain worn out. After 14 years, they'd had it.

With sadness in my heart I bought a pair of loafers at $4.99.

African Calypso Fans Cool to Satchmo Jazz

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI) — Louis Armstrong knows jazz but doesn't dig "high life," the local style of calypso music—so thousands of calypso lovers walked out of the opening concert of his Nigerian tour Tuesday. Same fans cheered a local band for two hours before Satchmo arrived.

Trevor Howard's bushy moustache in "Sons and Lovers" caused so much violent disagreement that he almost didn't appear in the picture.

From the beginning, director Jack Cardiff in London took the position that the moustache was essential to Howard's characterization of a British coal miner. But producer Jerry Wald in Hollywood was against it.

"Howard is a big star, and we're paying a star price for him," he argued. "People want to see him as they know him. We put a moustache on Gregory Peck once in a picture ("The Gunfighter") and it cost the company a million dollars—maybe more."

The issue was finally resolved by Howard's agent, Al Parker. "To put it in a nutshell, old boy," he informed Wald, "Trevor is an artist with certain standards of integrity. He feels the moustache is essential. Forgive me for being blunt, but—no moustache, no Howard."

Wald reluctantly agreed, but he urged Cardiff to "trim it down as small as you can."

Howard wears a medium sized moustache in the film.

Labor Raps Curb on Check-Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two labor leaders Wednesday predicted employers will follow the example of the provincial government and launch a campaign to get rid of the dues check-off for unions.

Pat O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, and Paddy Neale, secretary of the Vancouver Labor Council, said the provincial government's action in abolishing the dues check-off for the B.C. Government Employees' Association is the signal for renewed attacks on labor.

"The government is setting a pattern for employers to follow," said Mr. O'Neal.

"The government is trying to set the lead for management to make it more difficult for labor to remain financially solvent," said Mr. Neale.

McCartan Survives Punching Leads Rangers to 2-0 Shutout

* * * * * *

Lorne "Yo-Yo" Worsley, who loses his goaltending job for New York Rangers about twice a season on the average, may have more trouble than usual winning it back this time.

Jack McCartan, goalkeeper for the United States Olympic hockey champions, got his chance to take over last night after Rangers had lost four in a row. All he did was get a clip on the jaw in a riotous affair, stop 19 shots without a miss and tumble Chicago Black Hawks for the first time this season, 2-0.

	P	W	L	T	F	A	Pts.
Montreal	8	4	2	2	30	23	10
Chicago	6	4	1	1	16	9	9
New York	7	3	4	0	19	24	6
Toronto	7	2	3	2	16	20	6
Detroit	6	2	3	1	18	19	5
Boston	6	0	2	4	12	16	4

Last night's scores: Montreal 1 at Toronto 3; Chicago 0 at New York 2.
Next game, tonight: Boston at Detroit.

Rangers gave McCartan inspired protection but he had to be good to get the shutout, particularly after staggering off the ice early in the last period after getting a belt on the jaw from rookie defenceman Reg Fleming.

Trouble was started by Eddie Shack, the New York problem child, who fell heavily on Fleming near the Ranger goal. The two battled furiously for a while and later Fleming clipped McCartan and also tried John Hanna of the Rangers for size.

ROUGH-HOUSE GAME

Fleming received a minor penalty, two major penalties and a match misconduct while Shack and Hanna both got major penalties. It was the climax to a rough-house 60 minutes in which referee Dalton McArthur assessed 14 minor penalties, eight majors and the match misconduct for a total of 78 minutes.

Dean Prentice put the Rangers ahead in the first period when he popped in his own rebound while Chicago's Eric Nesterenko served a penalty. Andy Hebenton made it a bit more certain with the second goal, late in the second period.

TROUBLE IN TORONTO

Trouble also brewed in Toronto, where the Maple Leafs checked Montreal's irate Canadiens into submission, 3-1.

It all started midway through the third period, when Frank Mahovlich took a shot which hit Henri Richard flush in the face and caused injuries which could keep him out of action for a spell.

Richard was trying to check Mahovlich inside the Toronto zone, bending low in trying to sweep the puck away, when the big Toronto forward fired a shot.

HELD BACK

Dickie Moore, believing it to be a deliberate intent to injure, tried to get at Mahovlich. He was held back by officials but neither he or his teammates gave up. It got rougher and rougher in the third period and a full-scale brawl appeared imminent throughout as Canadiens tried to level off on Mahovlich each time he came on the ice.

Leafs put up a determined performance in winning their second in a row. They swarmed Canadiens in the first period but could only get a one-goal lead. Then after holding out in the middle 20 minutes, they checked Canadiens to a standstill, won it on goals by Bob Pulford and rookie Bobby Nevin.

Riggin Outshines Dechene; Winnipeg Beats Bucks, 4-1

Lucien Dechene played his first game for Calgary Stampeders this season but while the veteran goalkeeper came up with a fine job, it wasn't quite enough to beat out even-more spectacular goaling by Edmonton's Dennis Riggin.

The Warriors, who have played an extra game, moved along with a 4-1 win over Portland's wee Buckaroos at Winnipeg.

Riggin held the fort almost by himself in the second period, getting in front of 17 shots as his outplayed teammates managed only two shots at the Calgary goal.

Stamps got back the goal they conceded Don Poile in the first period when Ron Leopold finally got the puck by Riggin, at 1.05 of the third period. Four minutes later, Chuck Holmes produced the winning goal with a rising shot which got by Dechene.

Flyers used Bob Solinger, veteran leftwinger, on defence in place of rookie Rich Healy, had both centre Gene Achtymichuk and winger Roger Dejordy, the last two to sign, in action. Solinger turned in a neat job at his new position.

At Winnipeg, former NHL star Nick Mickoski scored the first two goals for the Warriors around a soft goal scored by Gordie Haworth. Gerry Brisson and Howie Hughes made it sure later in the game.

Dorohoy Signs Up; Warriors Drop Four

VANCOUVER (CP)—Centre Eddie Dorohoy, presently sidelined with a broken leg, has signed a contract with Vancouver Canucks and is expected to be in action with the Western Hockey League team in about six weeks.

Dorohoy broke his leg midway through the 1959-60 season. He was the Canucks' leading scorer at that time and has not played since. He broke it again this past summer in a household accident.

One of the WHL's most colorful and high-scoring players, Dorohoy signed a contract Tuesday.

He had not been classed as a holdout.

Dorohoy claimed the terms of the contract he signed last year specified that his salary would not be cut this year.

Vancouver manager Coley Hall felt this should not apply after Dorohoy broke the leg again during a fall in his home during the summer.

Hall said Tuesday that Dorohoy signed a 1960-61 contract at full salary.

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Warriors of the Western Hockey League have released four players and added another to their camp.

Dropped were defencemen Lew Mueller and Bob Blackburn and forwards Marcel Rochon and Laurie Langrell. The late arrival was Al Baty, a forward who played with the 1958 Memorial Cup champion Winnipeg Braves.

Junior Cagers Win Again; College Girls Handed Loss

Optimists junior basketball team posted its second straight exhibition victory last night at Mount View School Gym, defeating Halfway House of the Senior B League, 66-61.

Preliminary game saw Victoria B's defeat Victoria College, a junior girls' team, 37-24.

The Optimists held a six-point lead at half time, but that was as big as their margin was to get in the exciting men's game. Mike Soltice scored 18 points, high man for the night, to lead Optimists while Robin Barnes and Tom Collett had 13 each.

Gordie Jones' 14 was best for Halfways.

Nita Moody was the big factor for Victoria B's. She had 20 points, twice that of Carol Casilio, leading College scorer.

Victoria College — Sharon Wilson 4, Heather Ingles 4, Sylvia Wedman 6, Carol Casilio 10, Trudy Storrie, Judy Jerome, Eve Thackery, Roberta Riggall, Selma Holmberg, Sandra Worboys. Total—24.

Writers Rap Firing

Yankee-Haters Fatten Ranks

Make no mistake, the legion of Yankee-haters has been reinforced heavily since Tuesday, when co-owner Dan Topping announced that the 70-year-old veteran wasn't going to be kept for a 13th season as manager despite his pennant win this year.

Veteran baseball writers from New York to San Francisco are unanimous in their criticism.

"Competence has ceased to be the measuring yard in the Yankee scheme of things," wrote Arthur Daley of the New York Times. "It can be over-ruled and negated by the date on the man's birth certificate."

"Nervously puffing on a cigaret," Daley continued, "Dan Topping, co-owner with Del Webb, read a prepared statement at Tuesday's press conference. It was as full of empty words, as barren as one of Casey's rhetorical flights into Stengelese. After reading it, Topping faded into the background as if ashamed of himself. He should be . . ."

"It took them a long time to get around to the unvarnished fact that the man who had won 10 pennants and seven world championships in 12 years actually had the can tied to him," wrote Oscar Fraley of the United Press International.. "His ties with the Yankees vanish on Oct. 31. That's Halloween. The gargoyle grin he wore as he walked out was, somehow, very fitting."

EVEN PLAINER

Outspoken Dan Parker made it even plainer—"Losing the late World Series was just a slight mishap compared with what happened to the Yankees Tuesday. Officially, Casey's sin was reaching the age of 70. In view of this utterly unconvincing reason for firing a genius, it was a wonderful break for the Yankee owners that the club lost the recent series with Pittsburgh's Pirates."

Ken Smith finalized his piece with ". . . tthe mighty Casey Stengel struck out, victim of a fast curve from the front office."

As for Casey, he made it even plainer that his hand was forced, that there was no mutual agreement between him and the owners, as was claimed yesterday by Del Webb, that he was to retire.

"I wanted to stay managing," Stengel told Fraley, "and if I'd stayed I'd have wanted a two-year contract. They wanted me out for a new and younger system. That's the only excuse they have."

"I have no plans," he answered a question about his future. "I never talk about a job until it's offered to me."

GIANTS INTERESTED

There was some discussion that San Francisco Giants, who are going to get a new manager, would be more than slightly interested in Stengel. And owner Horace Stoneham admitted that Stengel has been given consideration.

Phil Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, said he would not rule out Stengel in considering his new manager but backed the Yankees by saying that "Frankly, I think his age is against him."

"I don't care who the Yankees hire in Stengel's place, they won't find a better manager," commented Paul Richards of Baltimore Orioles, the manager who came closest to beating out Stengel this season. "It's hard to think about guys like Casey being out of baseball. We don't have too many institutions such as he is . . ."

"Baseball won't be quite the same," said an old foe, manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox.

And so it went. Casey may have been struck out but it was the Yankees who fanned on this one in the opinion of almost everybody in and out of baseball.

Informed baseball men were ready to lay odds Wednesday that Ralph Houk, 41, New York coach for the past three years, will succeed Casey Stengel as manager of the Yankees in 1961.

Houk, a former Yankee catcher who returned to the organization after serving a terms as manager of the Denver club of the American Association, is expected to be introduced in his new capacity during a press conference Thursday.

IT BEATS ME

By Jim Tang

Contrary to what a lot of people believe, the New York Yankees did not become major league baseball's most successful club because they had the most money to spend. They had enough money, all right, but they were never close to at least a half dozen clubs when it came to spending it. They gave big bonuses only sparingly, and only when scouting reports were good enough to minimize the risk.

The Yankees won, and kept winning, because they had baseball's most efficient operation. It established a club tradition, unlike anything in the game, which was a tremendous factor and there was no room for the player who wasn't willing to give out to add to that tradition. And there weren't many who didn't give out. Winning is fun but, more than that, it is so very profitable for a professional athlete. The Yankees got their fun from counting the spoils which winning brought them.

Even begrudging them their almost endless string of successes one has to admire the Yankees for their efficiency on the field. Sure, they are professional men with a strictly professional outlook, but they have pride and they have always been a credit to baseball.

But the same admiration does not exist as often, if at all, for the organization, and its recent action has done nothing for that cause. The unpopularity of the New York club does not stem solely from the fact that it wins too often for most.

The New York owners don't owe Casey Stengel a thing—materially. They took him out of the minor leagues, they gave him the kind of clubs which could make him famous, they paid him a salary commensurate with the success he achieved, plus the $160,000 he is to receive as his share of the profit-sharing plan they set up some years ago.

And you have to grant that it is their right, as it is the right of any organization, to set a compulsory retirement age for their employees. In a cold, business way, the release of Casey Stengel at 70 years of age was fully justified. He was well paid for a job well done, he didn't need a job for financial or security reasons, and his employers believed that it was in their interest to get a younger man to carry on.

* * *

But Del Webb and Dan Topping didn't remember one important thing—the pride that made the Yankees famous. In his 12 seasons on Broadway, Casey Stengel became as synonymous with the Yankees as Babe Ruth or Joe DiMaggio. The last season proved that he was in full possession of all his faculties. He did a job which will tax the capabilities of any man the Yankees can get as his replacement. Only a bad bounce kept him from climaxing what surely was his greatest season with a record-breaking eighth series win. On what he did for them the Yankees owed him the right to make the decision himself on whether or not he would try again for that last spot in the record books. This the Yankees denied him.

For this Topping and Webb are being roundly, and expectedly, castigated. Callous is a mild word in the flood of adjectives describing the action, foolish is probably the most appropriate.

He was good for all of baseball, not just the Yankees. He got more "ink" for the game than Ted Williams, Stan Musial and Jim Piersall combined. His amazingly expressive face grinned or glared wryly from sports pages with amazing regularity and thousands of people who didn't know a double play from a double cross learned the difference reading about Casey.

Casey Stengel was the victim of the efficiency which made the Yankees a winner, the really efficient efficiency in which sentiment is never remembered and nary a battle is lost to emotion. But baseball, even at the Yankee level, is a game and in a game there must always be some sentiment and some emotion. The Messrs Topping and Webb could be hoist on their own petard.

* * *

I don't think baseball, or his old club, has heard the last of Casey Stengel the manager. It might be that the experience will make him decide that he has had enough but it wouldn't be in character. Casey is a prideful man, his pride has been severely dented and it is likely that he would take the chance to repair the injury.

The best, and logical, chance could come from the San Francisco Giants. Here is a baseball club crying for the talents Stengel has. They have the talent, lack only the leadership, to win in the National League. Now if they just could get together and go all the way and Ralph Houk, or whoever it is who will replace Stengel in New York, could bring the Yankees in again next year, the sports story of the decade would be set up.

Of course, it's only a dream at the moment but there'll be at least one more Yankee-hater if that series ever does come about.

Three Wins For Bays

Oak Bay kept its undefeated streak going in Colonist Cup inter-high school soccer play by defeating a stubborn Mount Douglas team, 1-0, yesterday at Reynolds Road Park.

Winning goal came on a penalty kick by inside left Larry McCann with only 15 minutes left to play. Mt. Douglas goalie, Woodhouse, was outstanding.

Victory was third straight for Oak Bay, defending champions.

Belmont won its first game, against two losses, by whitewashing Milnes Landing, 8-0 at Belmont. Warren Chapman scored three goals. Harvey Chipper two and singletons were counted by Gary Petrie, John Bartley and Roy Mills.

Belmont led, 3-0, at half time.

Ottawa Float Kind of Humorous

'Sort of Abstract Horse'

OTTAWA (CP)—Gerry Geldert, Ottawa's publicity director, has a $2,000 beast on his hands—and neither he nor the board of control can figure out what kind of brute they are paying to have represent the city in the Grey Cup parade in Vancouver this year.

Mayor Nelson and the four peers of Ottawa's purse strings were shown the artist's conception of Ottawa's float at a board of control meeting.

The sketch, made by a Vancouver firm, shows the platform with goal posts mounted on it. In front of the posts is a huge four-legged animal. The Ottawa city crest hangs between the goal posts.

After a period of speculation as to the animal's nature, the board agreed to send the whole thing back to Mr. Geldert whose task it will be either to come up with positive identification or find a better design.

VANCOUVER (CP)—That's a "sort of abstract horse" decorating a proposed Ottawa float for the Grey Cup parade here next month, says the man who designed it.

Herbert Challier, head of a Vancouver display firm that prepared the drawing, explained Wednesday that it was all a result of confusion and rush.

"We didn't have much time to prepare a drawing and we didn't know what theme Ottawa wanted in its float," he said, "so we tried to make it kind of humorous."

New Hydro Plans Mean More Fish

By ALEC MERRIMAN

Announcement yesterday of the go-ahead on Columbia River hydro development was good news for Vancouver Island fishermen, because it will undoubtedly mean postponement, if not cancellation, of the planned $20,000,000 Stamp River hydro development which threatened to deplete sockeye, coho and steelhead fisheries.

Proposed Nimpkish and Kokish River developments will likely be abandoned because of the availability of Columbia power.

The Stamp River project, which was to have been second stage of Ash River project and to have included a 50,000-horsepower generating station below Stamp Falls, had been held up because of negotiations between hydro and fisheries officials. It was to have included a tunnel, diverting water into the Stamp River, below Stamp Falls.

REDUCED FLOW

It would have resulted in reduced water flow in the Stamp River, above Stamp Falls, and numbers of fish would have been killed in the powerhouse turbines on the Stamp.

"This project would have been qnite a headache. We would have had to look after sockeye and coho smolts coming out of Great Central Lake," a fisheries spokesman said last week.

Pacific area fisheries director Rod Hourston said last week the Vancouver Island fish problems were contingent on plans for Columbia River power.

NEAR AGREEMENT

Fisheries officials say they are nearing a final agreement with the B.C. Power Commission with a minimum flow in the Ash River which has a spawning run of about 5,000 coho and a good steelhead run.

There is an interim agreement between the fisheries and hydro authorities in connection with minimum flow on the Ash River which runs into the Stamp River.

The Ash River hydro development which was completed last year at a cost of $15,000,000 to produce 35,000,000 horsepower included diversion of water from Elsie Lake through a mountain to the shore of Great Central Lake.

Other proposed hydro projects on Vancouver Island which posed a fish problem, and which undoubtedly will be dropped because of forthcoming Columbia power, were on the Kokish and Nimpkish Rivers.

The Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Clubs has started preparation of a sportsmen's guide which will show all the good hunting and fishing spots on Vancouver Island, together with information concerning access roads, boat launching ramps, and how to catch the fish.

The booklet will be 64 pages, cost $1, and is scheduled for publication next year.

Clair Changes Mind About Native Boys

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A few years ago Hec Crighton blew the whistle on Canadian pro football when he wrote in a national magazine that American coaches in the Canadian game are "49th parallel blind." In effect, he said they bypassed the home-brews in favor of the well-paid, much-ballyhooed imports.

That was in 1954, and Hec hit the issue right on the nose. Team operators didn't like it a bit and it didn't take them long to ease him out of the football picture. He had been a football player and official for 40 years, had rewritten the Canadian Rugby Union rule book and was a top authority on rules.

ON FRINGE

Today, he's on the fringe of things in anything pertaining to the Big Four and Western Conference.

At the time of writing, one of the guilty parties was coach Frank Clair, who had piloted Toronto Argonauts to Grey Cup victories in 1950 and 1952. Clair figured Americans should call the signals, carry the ball, and Canadians should labor at the unglamorous job of making the holes or playing strictly on defence.

But Clair, given a five-year contract by Ottawa Rough Riders in 1956, has changed his mind—or maybe Canadian players did it for him—because the Roughies right now are the terrors of the Big Four. And a lot of the credit can go to his Canadian ball carriers.

He has a flock of outstanding Canadians, and stickouts on offence are a couple that no pro club in the country could buy—quarterback Russ Jackson and halfback Ron Stewart. Each has been with the Riders three years and Jackson is the only Canadian-born, first-string quarter in the East.

BEST IN COUNTRY

Jackson, a 22-year-old, six-foot-one native of Hamilton, came into his own last year when the Riders narrowly missed winning the Eastern title. Football writers named him the outstanding Canadian player in the country. He won the Big Four's passing title with a completion percentage of .506 and directed the club's ground offensive, one of the best in Canada.

And Stewart? Well, he's something special. Just five-foot-six and a mere 170 pounds, he runs like a frightened rabbit. He could barely reach up and touch towering linemen on the helmet but he doesn't back off from anybody and fights for every yard he gains.

He had to fight for his job, too. Clair used him only sparingly when he joined the Riders in 1958 probably thinking the big bruisers would manhandle the little scatback. Stewart got a little more work in 1959 and this season has been carrying a big offensive load.

Statistics can be pretty dull, but not to Rider fans when they apply to the 24-year-old Stewart.

He is second behind George Dixon of Montreal in the scoring list. He is second behind team-mate Dave Thelen in rushing. He leads the punt-return men and is third on kickoff returns. And of course, he owns the Big Four record for rushing in a single game with 287 yards, made when the Riders humiliated Montreal 51-21.

OTHER CANUCKS

If you want to know about other Ottawa-born offensive threats, there are end Bobby Simpson, a 10-year veteran with the club, and halfback Davey West, a 32-year-old who has broken up a couple of games this season.

There's also Gary Schreider, a Queen's team-mate with Stewart. The 26-year-old Schreider, a fine defensive half who can also carry the ball, is the convert and placement kicking specialist for Riders.

Other clubs have a fair share of native-born ball-carrying and pass-catching Canadians, but you've got to hand it to import coach Clair for giving his homebreds a chance.

Somewhere along the line, between Crighton's criticism and Clair's appointment to the Ottawa job, he has learned a lot about Canadians.

Empire Stadium Will Groan

VANCOUVER — British Columbia Lions are preparing for a record crowd for their Western Interprovincial Football Union game against Calgary Stampeders at Empire Stadium Saturday night.

With more than 27,000 tickets already sold for the battle which will almost certainly decide which of the two clubs will meet Edmonton Eskimos in the WIFU semi-finals, the Lions feel that only reasonably good weather is needed to break the old record for a league game of 34,273 fans.

Club officials have asked the Pacific Canadian Exhibition to increase the seating capacity of the stadium to 36,000, expect to sell all seats if the weather remains clear.

Normal seating capacity of Empire Stadium is 32,000 but this will be increased to 38,700 for the Grey Cup game next month. Extra seating for Saturday's game can be installed quickly.

LIONS UNDERDOGS

Lions, who bested Calgary in a similar situation last season to make the playdowns for the first time in their history, will go into the game as shortenders.

Stampeders have improved steadily under new-coach Steve Owen. They have trimmed Saskatchewan Roughriders, 39-22, and Edmonton Eskimos by 31-11 and 35-17 in their last three games. Many football followers feel that the Stampeders, playing the way they have been expected to play for some time, may be good enough to give Winnipeg Blue Bombers all they can handle in the Western final.

They have what is now described as the finest offensive line in the WIFU and it's working in front of a fine backfield which can eat up yards on the running of Lovell Coleman, Don Stone, Earl Lunsford, Joe Kapp and Gene Filipski and the passing of Kapp to Filipski, Ernie Warlick and Bill McKenna.

AT PEAK STRENGTH

And Stampeders will start this one at peak strength with all hands ready for battle.

Physically, the Lions will be as good as they have been for some weeks. They have had a week to get rid of the bruises incurred on their two-game road trip and only end John Lands is a doubtful starter.

There is also a chance that import end Dick Johnson, hurt some time back, may be ready to take Lands' spot if needed, and that Roy Cameron, rookie Canadian defensive back, can play. Both were out with knee injuries.

Coach Wayne Robinson hasn't committed himself on a lineup but it is almost certain he will go with Jim Walden at quarterback. Willie Fleming will be at one halfback spot and it is possible that Bob Jeter will be started at offensive half for the first time in several games. Nub Beamer will be another import in the backfield but Robinson has to decide whether or not to use both fullback Don Vicic, who can be used as linebacker, and halfback Jim Jones, also a fair hand on defence.

Game time is at 8.30 and action will be televised with Victoria and Vancouver stations blacked out. A radio account will be given over CKWX.

Wedding Will Be Stylish

LONDON (AP)—A West Indian office cleaner and his girl friend started planning a dandy wedding Tuesday on a 70,001 pounds ($198,748) soccer pools win.

"Give up my job?" said Bill Grant, who makes $19.60 a week. "Certainly not. But we'll have a stylish marriage."

His girl friend, Elwina Foxe, works in a laundry.

Grant, 45, emigrated to Britain last year. Three months ago he sent word to Elwina to follow him and told her that if she worked hard too they could marry soon. So she came over and took the laundry job.

Grant hit the jackpot on a two-penny (two cents) bet, picking eight British soccer games to end in ties.

When he heard today how much he'd won, Grant immediately thought of his widowed mother back home in St. Kitts. He said he would send her a share of the money, but he wouldn't go home even for a visit.

"No, I won the money here, so I will stay here, spend it and be happy," Grant said.

City Site for Jobless Training School Sought by Province

Education department officials are looking for suitable accommodation in Victoria for a vocational school where unskilled unemployed workmen can learn trades that will help them get jobs.

"I expect the school will be in operation here before the end of the year," said Education Minister Leslie Peterson yesterday. "In fact we will start just as soon as we can find suitable space to rent."

Similar classes are already in full swing in Nanaimo, Vancouver and Burnaby.

The program has two facets — one, to bring the unemployed worker's level up to Grade 10 or higher, and the other, to teach various vocational trades.

A resolution calling for the establishment of such a course in Victoria was recently passed by the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria.

"In view of the present unemployment that prevails throughout Canada it is imperative that all responsible public agencies take such action as is possible to make unemployed people more employable through education and training," said Mr. Peterson.

Courses that will be available in Victoria to unemployed under the crash program include general commercial classes, practical nursing and service trades.

Unemployed chosen for the courses can receive up to $117 a month on top of their unemployment insurance pay. This is for the head of a family. If the family lives at home the grant is $91 a month.

A single man, living at home, can get $52 a month extra and $91 a month if away from home.

Play Area Becoming Classroom

Sooke school trustees approved award of a $4,977 contract to W. D. Fraser for conversion of a covered play area into a classroom addition to Sangster Elementary School on Lagoon Road. A spokesman said an unexpected large increase in enrolment at the three-room school forced the board to transport one class by bus to nearby Millstream School.

$10,000 More To Chest

More than $10,000 was donated to the Greater Victoria Community Chest yesterday, first day of the residential canvass.

Grand total donated to the Chest up to last night is $85,921. Included in the donations received yesterday was a $25 cheque from a Gulf Islands resident.

The Gulf Islands are not included in the Chest campaign although several member agencies work in the area.

Candidates To Face Labor Quiz

Victoria Labor Council last night decided to endorse some candidates in city and municipal elections in Greater Victoria in December.

A special committee will be appointed soon to interview all candidates in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. VLC endorsement will be given to candidates recommended by the committee.

The entry into municipal politics parallels the recent affiliation between organized labor and the CCF party in the provincial and federal political fields.

This will be the first year the VLC has taken such action on a broad scale.

In the past the VLC has endorsed a number of candidates in various city and municipal elections, notably VLC secretary A. W. Toone, who contested a city election two years ago.

The Victoria Amateur Movie Club will hold its monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at Norway House, 1110 Hillside. A film "Georgian Coffee Pot" and color slides will be shown.

By JACK FRY

A vicious molester sought by police since Monday has turned a Victoria dream home into a house of horrors.

"We've been saving for years to buy our dream house and it has turned out to be a nightmare," said Hubert Smith, of 3024 Quadra, who said they'd just moved in on Saturday.

He said his wife, Vivien Claire, was grabbed about the neck three times by a young man who forced his way into their home Tuesday.

SHE'D BE DEAD

"We're going to move out as soon as we can. My wife is in such a state she can't stay here any more. I'm quite convinced that if my daughter hadn't come running (11-year-old Irene Smith), my wife would be dead now," said Mr. Smith.

He said his wife had told the police the same story he gave the Colonist last night.

"I don't want to question the police version (which appeared in Wednesday's Colonist) because they may have felt that if this came out in the open it would scare the man into going under cover," said Mr. Smith.

NECK RED

"I was late in coming home from our other house where I was picking up some of the things we hadn't moved Saturday.

"When I got home my wife's neck was as red as fire."

"She had heard a soft tapping at the front door and thought it was me, knocking softly so as not to awaken the children. She opened the door and there was this man who insisted that he had to use our bathroom.

STARTED RUNNING

"My wife told him to go next door, that he couldn't come in, and when she started to close the door he pushed it open.

"Claire started running through the dining room and kitchen to the back door because we had two dogs outside. He was right on her heels and he caught her in the kitchen.

"He pleaded with her to kiss him. 'I love you. I can't live without you. I want one kiss, just one kiss,'" the man begged of Mrs. Smith.

"She refused and he grabbed her around the neck. He had one hand behind her neck and forced her chin up with the other hand."

Mr. Smith said that his wife broke away but was caught again at the back door, where the man again grabbed her by the neck.

She broke away a second time and ran onto the back porch but the dogs, who usually bark at strangers and who barked when police arrived, didn't bark once at the man.

"They wandered around by his feet as though they'd known him for years," he said.

GIRL TO RESCUE

Mrs. Smith screamed three times from the back porch and her 11-year-old daughter, awakened by the noise, ran down and started screaming, too. The daughter dialed a telephone operator and shouted for her to send the police to 3024 Quadra.

"My wife wouldn't sleep in the house Tuesday night. We decided to drive back to the empty house we used to rent when we discovered that the garage key, which dangled from a 14-inch cord in a hallway through which the man had chased my wife, was missing.

"Claire was the last one to use the key and she remembered she had hung it up in the hallway before supper," said Mr. Smith.

"We'll sell the house or rent it, we can't live here any more," he said.

Chief Constable John Blackstock last night warned Victoria housewives not to let strange men into their homes.

ASKED TO PHONE

Latest complaint was from Mrs. H. D. Hutchinson, 3011 Quadra, who reported to police at 10 a.m. yesterday that a man, matching the description of the youth police are searching for, came to the basement of her home and asked to use the telephone. He did not dial properly and then hung up, saying the line was busy.

Citizens were becoming jittery about the whole thing and police checked out every report, including one last night from a teen-age girl who saw a man in a light-colored jacket walking along a city street.

HAS REASONS

The youth, described as 19 to 22 years old, with long dark hair combed straight back, and wearing a short white jacket, has used various excuses, such as wanting to use the telephone, wanting to use the bathroom and wanting to rent an apartment, in efforts to talk his way into women's homes.

Chief Blackstock said that "women shouldn't let strangers use the phone unless there's some kind of an emergency like a bad accident."

He said householders should not open their doors on the grounds that somebody must use the bathroom, ". . . if a person is caught short at night he can always go into a vacant lot."

Dues Check-Off Issue

Civil Servants Stay Mum In Labor Council Protest

Victoria members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association last night dissociated themselves and their union from Victoria Labor Council's decision to protest the government's halt to union dues check-off.

The VLC adopted a motion protesting "the deplorable action of the B.C. government in removing the B.C. government employees' rights to the dues check-off."

The government decision was announced a week ago when Provincial Secretary Wesley Black attacked the association's affiliation with the B.C. Federation of Labor, which supported the CCF party in the recent provincial election.

"It seems to me that this will become the small end of the wedge," one delegate to last night's meeting said. "If it is legal it will face all our unions."

MOST VIGOROUS

Another told the meeting: "It is something like a couple of gangsters holding a man while another fellow kicks him. . . . We should make the most vigorous protest we can and we should request the B.C. Federation of Labor to protest."

A prepared statement read to the meeting by a delegate from the BCGEA stated:

"On behalf of the provincial government employees in the Victoria branch, I would simply like to state that we feel that because of the rather peculiar position that we find ourselves in, it is desirable to abstain from debate on this subject and that our silence should not imply agreement or disagreement with any decision made or opinion expressed."

Jamboree of Air

Scouts to Meet World by Radio

Scouts of the Greater Victoria area will be taking part in the Third Jamboree on the Air, a world-wide meeting of voices set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings.

With co-operation of amateur radio operators in all parts of the globe, Scouts on those evenings will talk with other Scouts wherever they may be, comparing notes on activities, ambitions, achievements.

In this area 40 boys, representing eight troops, will take part. The troops will be 2nd Fort Victoria (Fairfield), 3rd Juan de Fuca (Luxton), 4th Tsartlip (Royal Oak), 6th Arbutus (St. Paul's), 7th Fort Victoria (Gonzales), 6th Garry Oak (Gordon Head), 1st Douglas (North Quadra) and one representing Camosun district.

From 8 p.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday these boys will be on the air. No local broadcasts are planned for Sunday.

Ham radio operators making the jamboree possible for Victoria boys are:

Peter Robb, 1235 Fairfield; Douglas Price, 2438 Millstream; Harry Scott, 4801 West Saanich; Trevor Peasland, 3073 Albany; Don Seigler, 2231 Ida; Owen Hawkins, 584 Agnes; Earl Fenwick, 2529 Wark, and Donald Drumwell, 3257 Wicklow.

New University Auditorium

Prize Night Shifts to Gordon Head

The new auditorium on the Gordon Head campus for the first time will be the scene of Victoria University's annual prize-giving at 8 p.m. Friday.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony in which some 60 academic prizes, with a total value of $10,000, will be presented. The prize list includes scholarships and bursaries donated by individuals, businesses and various organizations.

Main speaker of the evening will be Dr. W. Kaye Lamb, Dominion archivist and national librarian. He was formerly B.C. librarian and archivist. He will speak on "A Balanced Diet of Learning."

On Thursday evening at 8.15, Dr. Lamb will address a public meeting in the music room of the public library. He will speak about Canada's national library, under auspices of the Friends of Victoria Public Library.

Who's Attending Palace Door? Could Be Former B.C. Butler

The two or three Victoria people in the know are anxiously awaiting word from London as to whether former Government House butler Robert I. Beaconbe is the new butler at Kensington Palace—home of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones.

The South African-born butler left Victoria a week or so ago to be interviewed for the position which became vacant when Thomas Cronin publicly objected to the way in which Mr. Armstrong-Jones wanted his house run.

Such a situation, said Mr. Cronin, was quite intolerable for a real gentleman's gentleman.

Mr. Beaconbe, besides serving under former B.C. lieutenant-governor Frank M. Ross, previously held similar positions in Government Houses in New Zealand, South Africa and Bermuda.

NO END TO QUESTION: Anguished yelp escaped from school board trustees this week when they were shown a pamphlet put out by B.C. Teachers' Federation for Grade 12 students who might be thinking of joining the profession.

One of the questions in listing the qualifications needed by teachers was: "Are you a good loser?"

Commented Richard Reeve for trustees, who are still smarting over an arbitration board award of 9 per cent last year and wage demand of 12 per cent this year:

"Under the present system how is it possible for a teacher ever to find out whether he's a good loser."

PHYSICAL EDUCATION: Scottish school children soon found there was little joy in stumping exchange teacher John Grant with tough questions in the classroom.

When he arrived in Scotland, Mr. Grant, supervisor of physical education for Greater Victoria, was told he also had to teach other subjects, some of which he was a little rusty on. His students found him an easy mark for tough questions.

He had a ready solution in getting over such embarrassing moments—he quickly ordered the entire class outside for more muscle-loosening exercises.

HIGHWAY PATROL: A police car pulled up alongside a sports car on the Patricia Bay Highway the other day, flagged the driver to the side, and politely asked how fast he thought he could travel.

"About 50," replied the driver.

"Better have it checked then," said the skeptical cop. "I have a sedan made by the same company with the same size engine and that'll do 75!"

The word now is that if he stands at all, Capt. Groos will do so under the Liberal banner.

SO SORRY: Included in the program for the Victoria Chinatown Lions Club annual Lantern Festival in the Sirocco Club tonight is such typical Chinese art as judo.

Having always been under the impression that judo was of Japanese origin, the column did a little research into the subject and unearthed the information that judo, like so many other things, had merely been "borrowed" by the Japanese.

Chinese monks developed judo for self-protection on their journeys and the art was introduced to Japan by Japanese who had seen the monks in action.

Tammie the Wanderer Safe at Home Again

Tammie, an 18-month-old Pomeranian who slipped her chain Sunday afternoon and wandered away from her home at 1449 Elford, is home safe again.

An elderly woman living on Harrison Street found the dog wandering along Fort Street, trying to cross through heavy traffic. Fearing the dog might be struck by a car, she took it home with her and contacted the owner, Mrs. J. H. Johnson, after reading about the missing dog in the Colonist.

Mrs. Johnson was fearful for Tammie's safety because the pet suffered a nervous condition and required drugs for treatment.

Bouffant Gown Worn by Bride

Rev. A. I. Higgins officiated at the ceremony in First United Church when Nancy, daughter of Mrs. K. Benton, exchanged marriage vows with Mr. Patrick Stephen McLoughlin, son of Mrs. S. McLoughlin, Courtenay, B.C.

A gown of ivory satin styled on princess lines with bateau neckline and full, hooped skirt was worn by the bride who walked up the aisle with an old family friend, Mr. Arthur Wiggins of Yorkton, Sask.

A headdress of seed pearls held her finger tip veil of silk illusion and she carried gardenias and ivy on a white Bible.

Mrs. Ray Saunders was matron of honor for her sister and wore a dress of aqua peau de soie, and matching velvet headdress. Her flowers were pale pink carnations.

Mr. Paul McLoughlin was best man for his brother and Mr. Lawrence St. Hillaire and Mr. Andrew Rittich acted as ushers.

Soloist Miss Kay Paulin sang "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

For a honeymoon in the United States the new Mrs. McLoughlin wore a beige mohair semi-fitted suit, beige and brown accessories with a corsage of muted orange carnations.

On their return they will make their home at 1117 Bay Street.

Buttons Out Front

NEW YORK (UPI) — Contemporary fashion's putting a temporary stop to the old game of "Button, button, who's got the button?"

The newest buttons are so large—and glittery—that few designers try to conceal them.

In a typical year, annual sales of buttons amount to about $32 million. But this year's giant and jeweled trend is expected to push button sales further into the millions.

Many of the buttons sold are of the dozen for a dime quality. But the new trend is so catching, that sales of buttons costing $1 each, and more, probably will double.

You can judge the value of the dress you buy by the buttons on it at time of purchase.

And the budget-conscious woman who buys a lower-priced dress with poor quality buttons can make it look better by replacing them with more expensive ones.

What's more, there's no simpler nor more effective remodeling job on last season's dress than by making it look fresher, newer and certainly more fashionable with the newest, biggest, jeweled buttons.

As a result of the trend, dozens of simple tricks with buttons are popping into view. For example, you can sew a bright one near the left shoulder of a sweater or classic woolen dress and it looks like an ornamental pin.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a mature, sensible, unmarried business woman of 44. A man I've known for many years (bachelor) moved to this city several months ago. He was having a difficult time finding a suitable apartment so I offered to let him move in with me. I have a lovely two-bedroom place and one bedroom was always vacant.

He pays half the rent and we split the utility and phone bills. We never get in each other's way and the arrangement is ideal. If you think there's any sex involved here you're wrong. We are good friends—and nothing more.

The evil-minded landlady suggested last week I take the man's name off the mailbox or tell people he's a cousin. I told her my conscience is clear and I see no reason to hide him or lie about his identity.

Am I right? Why do people have to think the worst? — NO FOOLIN'.

Dear No Foolin': Your conscience may be clear but your reputation is going to be mighty muddy if you don't move that bachelor out of there.

People make judgments on circumstantial evidence. There may well be no hanky-panky whatever, but the set-up suggests an illicit relationship. Don't change the mailbox — change HIS address.

★ ★ ★

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a boy 17 who dates a certain girl very often. I guess you might say we're going steady. We go out Friday and Saturday nights and sometimes Sunday if there's something special doing.

My problem is my girl doesn't care to eat at night. She says she'd rather have me spend the money on a practical gift for her—like a blouse or a sweater.

I don't like the idea much although I can't tell you exactly what's wrong with it. Maybe it's because nobody I know does this. She says she doesn't care what other people do, she believes in leading her own life and in being practical.

—WILLING TO LISTEN

Dear Willing: Refreshments are part of the fun of going out. If your girl doesn't care to eat after a movie or a dance, take her home. You don't have a written contract that you must spend a certain amount of money on her, do you?

A 17-year-old should not have a financial arrangement of this kind with his girl. Her father should buy her clothing.

Dear Ann: My neighbor forces her 14-month old child to eat by pinching his nose shut so he must swallow the food she stuffs into his mouth. The child screams at the sight of the high chair and it makes me sick the way she abuses that child.

Her little boy is thin and nervous and it worries me that when he grows up he'll be a nervous wreck. I've hinted that such feeding is not good and she says "As long as you get the food into 'em it doesn't matter how."

Please tell me what to do — if anything. When I hear that child scream at mealtime it breaks my heart —

NEIGHBOR

★ ★ ★

Dear Neighbor: Tell the woman's husband at once and suggest he ask the family doctor (or the pediatrician) to talk with her immediately. She sounds like a sadistic character who is taking out her anxiety on the defenceless child.

★ ★ ★

To learn the booby-traps of teenage drinking, write for Ann Landers', booklet, "Teenage Drinking," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Leader Training On Agenda

TORONTO (CP) — Training of leaders for brownie packs, guide companies and ranger groups is one of the topics to be discussed at a four-day committee session of the Canadian council of the Girl Guides' Association here this week.

Mrs. R. L. Thiesmeyer of Montreal is chairman. Delegates include Deputy Chief Commissioner Mrs. A. F. Wilks of Vancouver.

Tips for Parents

By EDITH HENRY

The first crop of "baby-boom babies" has now reached the age of eighteen.

If your adolescent is one of this harvest you will do well to consider him not alone as an individual.

In Britain it is known that the 16-24-year age group spends £35 million a year on confectionary.

In Canada the 'teen age working girl, for example, buys (according to one bank manager) one longplaying record a week and for her holidays is quite likely to go on a two-week cruise to Jugoslavia!

She represents a whole new market for manufacturers of clothes and accessories.

★ ★ ★

Merchants are aware that adolescents are "monied people." They are willing to allow them to buy on credit.

These facts surely intensify the need for training our children from the earliest years to be discriminating, choosing what is of true value especially where the spending of money is concerned.

WHAT'S COOKING

By LOUISE MOORE

For Men Only — when you sit down to a meal don't grouch and throw sand in the machinery before you even tie the napkin around your waist.

Have you any idea of the struggle and frustrations involved to please and satisfy your appetite?

Why not take over occasionally and give her a chance to rest?

When you do take over, get away from the old routine and do things with a flourish. And if you wish a dish that will win you compliments—is there a man who can't take one, hook, line and sinker — this dish will surely bring you praise.

★ ★ ★

FILET OF BEEF

Get a nice filet of beef weighing about 2½ pounds. Wipe with a clean dry cloth and place in a shallow dish.

Make a marinade with 1 cup salad oil, 2 cups red wine—here is where you can use up the rest of the bottle—a dozen sprigs parsley, 10 whole cloves and a ½ dozen whole black peppers slightly crushed, 1 clove of garlic slivered, a slice of onion, 2 bay leaves broken in pieces, ½ tsp. each basil and oregano, ½ tsp. salt. Bring to boil in saucepan.

Cool somewhat and pour over the filet making sure it covers the meat well. Let stand 5 hours. (A good dish to make Saturday when you're home from work.) Remove filet from marinade and pat dry with clean towel. Dust filet with salt and pepper and brush on all sides with 3 tblsp. soft butter. Don't stint on this.

★ ★ ★

Put in small shallow roasting pan and roast uncovered in oven preheated to 450F. Roast 20-25 minutes, turning meat several times to brown evenly on all sides and basting with the melted butter and drippings. Reduce oven to moderate (350), pour in 1 cup of the marinade, cover and cook 20 minutes longer. Place filet on hot platter and keep hot.

★ ★ ★

Strain liquid in pan and into pan stir ¼ cup flour and stir over low heat until smooth, adding the strained liquid a little at a time until smooth and thickened. If too thick add a little more of the marinade Pour into hot gravy boat.

Turn heat under a chafing dish or use a saucepan over low heat. Rub the bowl or dish with 1 tblsp. butter so sides and bottom are greased. When very hot place the filet in the bowl or chafing dish. Pour 1 cup preheated brandy over the filet and ignite—you'll get a puff of flame but it soon dies down.

When flame is out remove the meat to hot platter. Spoon out half the brandy from pan, adding it to the gravy already prepared. Do this quickly.

Slice the filet and serve at once with a little of the gravy on each serving. Accompany it by shoestring potatoes, red cabbage with sour cream, string bean salad, crusty rolls and for the finale—nothing—unless fresh pears, wine and cheese—the perfect ending.

Poodles Not Last Word In Their Own Country

PARIS — Nobody is a prophet in his own country! And in a dog's world French poodles are not the "dernier cri" in Paris.

Scanning through the who's who of dogs, we haven't found a single "Caniche" (French word for poodle) listed in the canine French "social register." Although in the Paris streets one does occasionally spot a French poodle being taken for a walk by a chic Parisienne. And often the dog is as smartly dressed as its mistress.

From President General Charles de Gaulle down to Brigitte Bardot, famed gentlemen and ladies in France seem to prefer less "frivolous" and more down-to-earth canine companions. Apropos down-to-earth, the French have nicknamed the low-build German dachshund "lin du ceil" ("far from heaven") because of his proximity to the ground.

At Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises, the private estate of President de Gaulle, a friendly, spotted dog has been seen taking walks with his important, illustrous, tall master. Nobody knows exactly whether the French president's pet is a corgy, a spaniel or something else. And it appears as if the dog's race, name and age have so far been kept a "state secret."

On the other hand, Pablo Picasso, the famed painter, doesn't make any bones about "Yang," his boxer dog. Even with his pet, Picasso has proved a "non-conformist": The ears of this boxer have not been clipped when he was a pup as is the custom with boxers.

French as she undeniably is, Brigitte Bardot preferred to give an English name to her dog. "Clown," a cocker spaniel, was even portrayed with his masters on the birth announcement of Brigitte's baby, Nicola. The movie star has also a second pet, a dog of unidentifiable race she picked up while on location in Spain. His name is "Guapa."

The Marquis de Ceuvas, famous for his ballet troupe, is a gentleman of distinction. So are his pets, nine Pekingese dogs, one or two of which accompany him to his ballet and social functions.

Paris fashion designer Pierre Balmain is working on the social rehabilitation of French poodles. He has shown a white poodle "worn" by a blonde model to match her shaggy white fur coat and hat. However, the dog which seems to be really up-and-coming is the boxer. And personalities of the intellectual and artistic French world are now keeping boxers as avante-garde symbols.

NURSES' MEETING

Dr. G. M. Woodwark, speaking to the Greater Victoria District of the Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia recently, outlined the program of investigation of diseases of the heart currently being carried out, with the help of latest diagnostic equipment, at the Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospitals. Mr. Woodwark indicated that this program will lead to the successful treatment of many more people suffering from heart disease.

Dr. Woodwark is a cardiologist who has come to Victoria from London, via Southern Rhodesia and the United States.

Dr. Lamb To Address Meeting

Quit Coyness in Crisis Argue Taunts John D

OTTAWA (UPI) — National CCF leader Hazen Argue last night challenged Prime Minister Diefenbaker to "quit playing coy" and call parliament into session immediately to deal with the nation's unemployment problem.

Argue coupled the challenge with an outline of an eight-point CCF program to meet "this great national crisis."

His chief proposal was a billion-dollar capital investment fund to be raised through bonds and taxation "based on ability to pay" and to be used to invest in Canadian industries and resources. Such investment would "prime the employment pump" and also stop foreign domination of this country's economy, Argue said.

He also advocated an expanded public works program, more federal housing funds, increased federal-provincial highway construction, acceptance of local currency as part of a drive for greater export markets and a national superannuation plan providing a minimum pension of $75 a month at age 65 without a means test.

Argue said the latest unemployment figures, released yesterday, showed 102,000 more Canadians out of work in September than a year ago.

"I ask the prime minister to call the Canadian parliament into session immediately and to come to grips with this great national crisis," he said. "The waste of human and natural resources should be brought to an end."

Confidence Vote

De Gaulle Fights Revolt

PARIS (UPI)—The French government decided Wednesday to stake its life in a confidence vote aimed at crushing a parliamentary revolt against President de Gaulle's regime.

The cabinet, under de Gaulle's chairmanship, authorized Premier Debre to use a confidence vote to push through a reluctant national assembly the government project for an independent nuclear striking force.

A critical debate on the billion-dollar project is going on in the assembly and defeat would mean fall of the government.

Meanwhile Jacques Soustelle, once one of de Gaulle's top aides, announced formation of a new opposition political movement in revolt against the general's policy of an "Algerian Algeria."

Someone Got $40,000 Court's View of Theft

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice H. I. Bird has reserved decision on a crown appeal for a stiffer sentence for a man convicted of stealing gasoline from the RCAF after saying someone must have received $40,000 from the thefts.

W. A. Craig, crown counsel, said the suspended sentence of Peter Bludoff, 43, is not enough for someone who helped air force personnel defraud their country.

He said more than 200,000 gallons of gasoline were stolen over a two-year period and sold to independent dealers at 20 cents a gallon.

"Someone must have received over $40,000," said Mr. Justice Bird.

Bludoff has paid $4,000 of the $5,000 restitution he was ordered to pay and now is working as a truck driver to pay the rest.

Western RED CEDAR Bevel SIDING

"Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required.

With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction.

It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior.

5 GRADES TO CHOOSE FROM!

"FOREST" CEDAR SIDING

WHAT IS FOREST SIDING?
Made of dry 1¼" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths. "FOREST" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawn to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc.

APPEARANCE?
For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired, enhanced by heavy shadow lines. Sound intergrown knots ranging in size from 2-inch in 6-inch widths to 4-inch in 12-inch widths add to the rustic appearance of this grade.

WHAT ARE ITS QUALITIES?
"FOREST" siding, with its substantial thickness and greater wood volume, adds to the structural STRENGTH and solidity of the building.
The design of "FOREST" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its thickness and flush-to-base principle, makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint.
"FOREST" siding represents an ECONOMY to home-builders. Costing less than most other types of siding the tab design ensures easy fitting and speedy application at less labor cost.

HOW IS IT APPLIED?
As easily and quickly as common shiplap. Each piece of "FOREST" siding fits snugly on the one below and requires only one mitre cut.

HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED?
If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and the grain. If a colored finish is desired "FOREST" siding can easily be painted. It is recommended that a sharp instrument be used to score the finished product underneath the butt (where it will not show) to stop formation of a vapor barrier.

TV TALK

One or two specials recently have turned out to be poor entertainment so there is a question mark hanging over The Right Man, an "actuality revue" keyed to the United States presidential race.

Garry Moore is host and narrator and promises a "fast-moving panorama of the rowdy, razzle-dazzle politicking that traditionally overlays the serious business of choosing the right man."

Richard Boone, Thomas Mitchell and Paul Ford are among those slated to appear.

The show will appear over Channel 12 at 8.30 p.m., Oct. 24.

Thursday's Highlights

3.00 p.m.—Music in Miniature, a new weekly half-hour program will feature serious music—2 and 6.

4.30—Just Mary, the 15-minute children's program, returns to the air—2 and 6.

9.30 — Tennessee Ernie Ford salutes the United Nations with Jack (Queen For a Day) Bailey as guest —2, 5 and 6.

Thursday's Movies

9.00 a.m.—No Man's Woman (1955 drama), Marie Windsor—4.

★ 10.30—Face To Face (1952 drama two separate stories), James Mason, Michael Pate, Robert Preston —6.

'Mummy' Death Suicide?

RUTHIN, Wales (Reuters) —Britain's "mummy in the cupboard murder trial Tuesday ended in a dramatic acquittal for widow Sara Jane Harvey.

The judge ordered the jury to find the 65-year-old defendant not guilty of murdering Mrs. Frances Alice Knight, a lodger who disappeared 20 years ago.

But he sentenced her to 15 months' imprisonment on two charges of obtaining money due to the dead woman by pretending she was still alive.

Mrs. Knight's body, preserved like an Egyptian mummy by a draft of dry air, was found in a cupboard this year when Mrs. Harvey's son was redecorating her house.

The directed acquittal came after a key prosecution witness, biologist Dr. Alan Clift, fainted on the witness stand after testifying death was caused by a stocking found around the body's neck — but that it might have been suicide.

All Look Sick — Homes Dirty

Zoo Animals Are Starving In Food-Short Leopoldville

Only Single Attendant For 100 Cages, Pits

LEOPOLDVILLE (CP) — Like many other things in the Congo, Leopoldville's zoo is going to seed.

The animal cages are dirty. The grounds, covered by fallen leaves, are untended. The animals are starving.

The privately-owned zoo is occupied by a wide variety of animals captured in African jungles. There are a few animals native to North America and Europe.

SICK, HUNGRY

All look sick and hungry. There was only one Congolese attendant to take care of the 100-odd cages and pits. He spent most of his time refilling the two gorillas' water buckets.

The gorillas, goaded by a group of Pakistani soldiers who beat a rhythm by clapping hands, kept up a sporadic foot-stomping dance around their cages, winding up by tossing the water bucket to the scurrying, laughing soldiers.

Then the gorillas, who smoked lighted cigarets tossed in by soldiers, climbed the iron bars and screamed with anger.

Congolese who often visit the zoo said that, because of the food shortage in the city, government officials will not earmark food for the zoo.

The entrance fee is 10 francs (20 cents) for adults and five francs for children.

There is a variety of monkeys, African deer and antelopes, leopards, elephants, wild hogs, parrots, owls, multi-colored smaller birds, ostriches, a couple of lions and one giraffe.

North America's animal kingdom is represented by a huge Kodiak bear, a couple of black bears, three raccoons, a coyote, a red fox who hobbles on semi-paralyzed hind quarters and a seal swimming lazily in a pool of dirty water.

If food is scarce for animals, it's scarcer for unemployed Congolese. An old man fished quietly in the crocodile pen, his fishing rod poking through the iron fence.

A bucket at his feet held about a dozen fish the size of a man's finger. His supper that night would be spartan.

Unsatisfying Thinness Mars Decorative Work

By INA D. D. UHTHOFF

To understand Duncan de Kergommeaux's work one must know something about the artist himself. A sensitive introspective painter, he appears to be feeling his way towards what will eventually be a personal expression.

In the 14 canvases which form a small collection of his work now being shown in the Ker Wing, there is a pleasantly decorative quality but there is also a thinness that is unsatisfying. He handles his brush with freedom and vigor but has not mastered the calligraphic subtlety of the whites for which he appears to be striving.

The amount of energy put into the paintings is not sufficiently controlled to communicate an idea.

TWO PLANES

Painted on two picture planes, one in color, the second an overlay of white brush strokes, the color shapes which survive this treatment appear and disappear in this fog of white but are too nebulous to suggest structure, pattern or light and space.

Also, I find it disturbing to have my eyes forcibly attracted to one corner of a canvas by a large, aggressively used splash of bright red which makes the composition lurch to one side.

There are many new elements to be explored by the contemporary painter, and the so-called new approach to painting claims to transcend the representation of natural forms and to provide a more dynamic relationship between the work of art, the artist and the onlooker.

RARE BIRDS

In the hands of a master, yes, but such masters are rare birds. We have seen too many good painters come to grief in recent years by throwing too much over and failing to make any communication with the onlooker.

At "The Point" (which, by the way, is not part of the Art Gallery as some people seem to think but is a delightful set of showrooms on Fort Street) there have been two recent exhibitions by local artists.

The first being of paintings, mosaics and pottery by Sylvia Sutton, the second of paintings and graphics by Flemming Jorgensen.

I was sorry not to see more paintings in Sylvia Sutton's exhibit but the few that were shown were typical of her best work. Her pottery follows no accepted technique, it is "earthy" and heavy to handle, with very little glaze used but it has a pleasingly decorative effect. I like her "Owls" for their amusingly naive characterization.

Flemming Jorgensen was born in Denmark in 1934 and came to Canada with a training of many years in painting, design and display. He has, during the past three years, been studying with Herbert Siebner here in Victoria.

COMPELLING THINGS

His large canvases are compelling things in their feeling of unity and power, and in his graphics he shows himself to be an outstanding draftsman with great vitality.

He is an artist of promise who should go far.

Elephants in South Africa's Kruger game reserve each devour about 900 pounds of vegetation daily.

Screamed as He Ran

Mauled Hunter Empties Gun in Grizzly

NANAIMO—With the mouth of an angry 1,000-pound silver-tip grizzly a scant two feet from him, a terror-stricken hunter managed to fire a shot that knocked the bear over.

Harold Jorgensen, member of a Nanaimo hunting party, told his story Wednesday of a battle to the death with the bear in the Horsefly district, 65 miles from Williams Lake, 250 miles northeast of Victoria.

He said he came upon the seven-foot animal in a small clearing after he had split from the rest of the hunting party.

The bear first walked away then wheeled and charged from about 30 feet. Mr. Jorgensen said he aimed a shot between the bears eyes but it kept coming. Mr. Jorgensen ran into dense bush with the bear in close pursuit.

"The bear ran past me within five feet then swung back. I fired again and he just went up on his hind legs and kept coming. I fired a third time and by then he had reached me.

"He knocked the rifle back into my shoulder, wounding my hand and knocking me over."

With the bear's mouth two feet away, he raised his rifle and fired. The bear fell as the hunter rolled away. Mr. Jorgenson fired again and again.

"I was screaming by this time and ran away to reload my last three shots which were in my pocket."

With one of the last bullets, the bear finally dropped.

Jorgenson said the entire battle probably lasted no more than 30 seconds but that it seemed like an hour.

A doctor who treated the hunter's badly mauled hand at a nearby settlement, entertained his patient during the treatment by assuring him that there were no grizzlies in the area, and that in any case they would not attack a human.

After Jorgenson and members of his party returned to the scene of the attack, they found that the bear had been gorging on a moose carcass when the hunter interrupted the feast.

The bear, whose perforated hide the hunter kept as a souvenir of his near-tragic encounter, measured seven feet in length.

Nanaimo Neighbors In Costly Reunion

ALBERNI—Two Nanaimo men ran into each other in Alberni this week.

Child was charged with careless driving. Damage was estimated at $200.

Pay Increase

Saanich Teachers Ask 8 Per Cent

School teachers in rural Saanich have asked trustees of School District 63 for 1961 salary increases averaging some 8 per cent.

H. A. Rowbottom, chairman of the board's salary committee, said yesterday the proposed schedule was presented by teachers Monday night and trustees are preparing a counter-proposal.

The new schedule, which proposes a different pattern of increments for many of the 111 teachers employed in the district, is now under study by the board, said Mr. Rowbottom.

"We are interested in the new proposal, which on the face of it looks to have some advantages," said Mr. Rowbottom. "But we're not sold on it, yet."

A third meeting between the negotiating groups will be held early next week.

$6-a-Week Driver Fined $10 in Court

DUNCAN — A wood truck driver who makes from $4 to $6 a week was given time to pay a $10 fine yesterday in court.

Bishan Singh Subedar, Duncan, pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a truck without a rear-view mirror. He said it had fallen down.

Subedar said he had been unemployed since coming to the country nine months ago, and that he earned a little money making two or three deliveries a week.

Also in court, a .22-calibre automatic pistol was confiscated when its owner, Larry Reginald Pilcher, Victoria, pleaded guilty and was fined $20 for having it in his car Oct. 10 without a permit.

Gerrit Hols, Chemainus, was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of having a loaded rifle in his car Saturday near Hillbank. He said he was going to kill a cow.

James N. Russell, Victoria, was fined $25 for having a loaded rifle in his truck.

Tom Charles Evans, 3320 Metchosin, Victoria, was found guilty after a trial and fined $20 for having a loaded rifle in a car Sept. 24 on the Port Renfrew road. He denied that a game warden saw him removing shells.

Half of Canadian Industry 'Already U.S.-Controlled'

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Express warns that Canada is rapidly being reduced to the role of subordinate supplier to the United States.

In an Ottawa dispatch by Rene MacColl, the newspaper says more than half of all Canadian manufacturing industry "is already American-owned and controlled."

In many vital kinds of manufacturing the outside domination runs from 75 per cent to a "blanket 100 per cent." In petroleum and natural gas the percentages are 65 to 80 U.S. owned respectively.

If the trend continues unchecked, the newspaper adds, U.S. control of Canada's means of production will have been extended to more than two-thirds of the Canadian economy in the next 20 years, and perhaps sooner.

The newspaper's remarks followed remarks by James Coyne, governor of the Bank of Canada, who said:

"No country in the world with anything like our relative stage of development has . . . had such a degree of foreign domination."

Unless Canada can solve this problem, the newspaper quotes Coyne, "her future must be considered bleak, indeed, both economically and in terms of maintaining her national sovereignty and independence."

Danish Ship

Skipper Rushed To Hospital

A Danish sea captain was reported in "quite critical" condition last night by St. Joseph's Hospital officials after he had been brought ashore suffering from pneumonia and a heart condition.

Capt. V. Hejlso, master of the Danish freighter Sargodha, was taken off his ship by a B.C. Pilotage launch near Race Rocks shortly after noon yesterday. The freighter continued on its way to Vancouver.

Earlier, a U.S. Coast Guard helicopter from Port Angeles failed in an attempt to lower a doctor to the Sargoha because of the height of its masts.

Keep Tom Cat Away Neighbors Beg Court

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI) — Mr. and Mrs. J. Howard Cook, amateur Siamese cat breeders, asked the municipal court yesterday for a restraining order against a neighboring tomcat named Herman.

The Cooks said Herman lives at the adjoining home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bowler—but he won't stay there.

They told Judge Frederick Van Sicklen they had been scratched, chased and bitten by the yellow tomcat during the past year while trying to keep him out of their yard.

Mrs. Cook testified that Herman broke a window and tore a screen door when she brought her female Siamese inside the house.

"He just doesn't act like a reasonable cat," she said.

Judge Van Sicklen continued the case until today.

'Be Honest, Vote for China'

FREDERICTON, N.B. (UPI) —New Brunswick Premier Louis Robichaud said yesterday that world leaders have failed to be honest with themselves on the issue of recognition of Communist China within the United Nations.

Delivering the address at the fall convocation of the University of New Brunswick, Robichaud said Communist China is a nation whose good or bad intentions could well mean life or death to the rest of the world.

Amnesia, Foul Play Ruled Out in Mystery

NANAIMO — Police have ruled out the possibility of foul play in the disappearance Sept. 24 of 57-year-old Len Quickenden, a federal civil servant employed at the Pacific Biological Station.

Police also doubt that he is a victim of amnesia in view of reports from several doctors here that "true amnesia is a very rare thing."

Quickenden's locked car was found parked near a Nanaimo ferry dock more than three weeks ago, indicating he may have gone to Vancouver. He was not known to have been carrying any large sum of money at the time of his disappearance.

Green to UN:

Slash Red Tape

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada demanded Wednesday that the United Nations slice boldly through the oceans of red tape on disarmament and get down to business on a scientific basis.'

External Affairs Minister Howard Green asked the 99-member UN political committee for a broadened attack on disarmament based on progress already made in a 10-nation committee which hit the rocks last June.

SMALLER POWERS

"The ideas of middle and smaller powers—as well as those of the nuclear countries—should be invoked in this strugle to save humanity," said Green.

The Canadian foreign chief urged the UN to go beyond British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West scientific committee to meet first and prepare the ground for political leaders.

SWISS SUGGESTED

He pressed for the appointment of such a committee—or committees—and also stressed the need for a parallel committee to be appointed by the 99-member UN disarmament commission in an advisory capacity.

Green also proposed a neutral chairman for the 10-nation committee — he said a Swiss would be ideal—and he held out the possibility, without explicitly saying so, that so-called neutralist nations should take part in disarmament negotiations.

REPEATS THREAT

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin repeated the Russian threat of a walk-out Wednesday.

U.S. Ambassador James J. Wadsworth declared:

"We will not walk out of this committee in any circumstances, and we will not be intimidated by a Soviet threat to do so."

Pay Demands 'Avaricious'

By IAN STREET

Trustees last night termed Greater Victoria teachers' demand for salary increases averaging 12 per cent "outrageous and avaricious."

Teachers' representatives, however, showed no indication by the end of a 90-minute negotiating session that they are willing to revise their original figure downward.

SECOND SESSION

Trustees during the second session of the negotiations made no counter offer on salaries. The two parties went on to discuss other clauses in the contract until the session ended.

Kenneth Leeming, chairman of the board's salary committee, said bluntly trustees felt no increase in the basic salary scale for local teachers was justified at a time "when economic conditions in B.C. are not as healthy as they might be."

FAIR, JUST

He said the present teachers' salary scale, established by due and open process of arbitration and accepted as a "fair and just distribution," was considered by the board to be "quite adequate."

Teachers' spokesman V. N. R. Sewell said the school board in the past has encouraged teachers to improve their qualifications and now must "reward" teachers for having done so.

52 PER CENT

He pointed out that at present 52 per cent of Victoria teachers have full university qualifications. At the secondary level, 57 per cent of local teachers have the highest professional qualifications recognized by the department of education — more than any other district.

"This policy of having highly qualified teachers has paid good dividends . . . Victoria students won seven out of the last 10 Governor - General's Gold Medals," said Mr. Sewell.

KEEP BEST

"To continue this level of achievement it will be necessary to keep the best teachers and draw the best teachers to Victoria."

Mr. Leeming said he knew why highly-qualified teachers didn't go to other districts "where they could get more . . . they like living here and are willing to accept a more modest scale in order to enjoy the many advantages Victoria has to offer."

EMBARRASSING

He added: "How embarrassing it would be to all the other school boards in the province if we went up to the salary maxima . . . they would have no teachers at all."

Board chairman W. C. Gelling said he agreed "we should not stress the fact that we should have the finest teachers in B.C. . . . in all fairness to the students in the rest of the province."

RESENT ATTITUDE

Mr. Sewell retorted: "As a taxpayer and the father of four children I rather resent your attitude. Trustees should want to have a very good roster of teachers in Victoria.

"It vexes me, not as a teacher, but as a parent. I don't think we should stand back and let the other districts take all the best teachers."

Contempt Case

Gaglardi Pays $1,000 Fine

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi was fined $1,000 and a U.S. contractor was sent to prison indefinitely Wednesday for wilful contempt of court.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris handed out the sentences for contempt of a court order he issued a year ago in a tangled legal case involving money owed by a contracting firm which did work for the highways department.

Clyde Thornton of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, was ordered to prison until he "purges himself of the contempt." In effect, he must pay $25,516 which the original order found his firm owed.

Mr. Gaglardi paid the fine and then filed an appeal. Thornton is expected to file an appeal and seek bail today.

STOOD TO GAIN

The justice said both men were guilty of "wilful contempt." Mr. Gaglardi had "aided and abetted" Thornton in violation of the order and Thornton and his firm "stood to gain" from the contempt.

"As for you, Gaglardi, your offence is an extremely serious one, but you did not personally gain in this and that is to the good," he said.

He had taken into account that the minister acted on legal advice in sending a cheque. But he criticized Mr. Gaglardi for acting on this advice "in face of a court order."

Mr. Gaglardi "permitted his subordinates to ignore the court order in favor of carrying out the 'practice and policy' of his department."

SEATTLE MAN

The contempt charge was brought by Burton Glazier of Seattle, who had obtained the order $25,516 of funds held by the B.C. government for Union Contractors Ltd. be paid to Montreal Trust Co. as receiver. Thornton was treasurer and vice-president of Union Contractors, which had a contract for a highway project near Revelstoke.

Instead of sending the money to Montreal Trust, the highways department sent $75,000 to Thornton's bank in Bonner's Ferry.

Mr. Justice Norris said Thornton was present when the order was made a year ago, yet failed to notify his bank at Bonner's Ferry not to accept the money or forward it to the trust company.

Clause in Columbia Pact

B.C. May Be Able to Sell Extra Power Back to U.S.

★ ★ ★

Provincial government will be able to "export" some of the power received under the proposed Columbia River agreement and will almost certainly do so in the initial stages of the $450,000,000 development. (See full details Page 3.)

Lands Minister Ray Williston said it was a matter of either selling the power in the U.S. or "giving it away" and that such an arrangement would continue until all the power could be utilized in B.C.

The minister also expressed a fear that while the proposed agreement, details of which were announced yesterday, was "the best possible deal for B.C." there might be some spirited opposition to the proposals in the U.S.

As payment for this, the U.S. will make available to B.C. 50 per cent of the extra power generated south of the border.

A clause in the proposed agreement says that, subject to the authorization of the U.S. and Canada, "portions of the power benefits to which Canada is entitled under the treaty may be disposed of within the United States."

This, in effect, would enable B.C. to sell power to the U.S.—a move strongly opposed by the CCF opposition which argues that once power is exported there can be no subsequent turning back because new industries in the U.S. depend on the extra power.

Mr. Williston said utility districts now operating on the Columbia would not be happy about having to give half their extra power to B.C.

"This looks just wonderful on paper but it's not finished yet by a long shot," said the minister.

CCF:

Keep BCE Out

CCF leader Robert Strachan said yesterday that the distribution of Columbia River power must not be put in the hands of the B.C. Electric Co.

"We must also ensure that the benefits of this public power are not lost by an attempt by Wenner-Gren and the B.C. Electric to pool and export public and private power as being the only means whereby the Wenner-Gren promoters can make millions from stock promotion," said Mr. Strachan.

Distribution of the power by the B.C. Electric would "rob the people of the benefits brought about by public development of the Columbia."

The CCF leader said his party had said all along that the Columbia could be developed to produce cheap power under public ownership

Kennedy Beats Nixon For New York Cheers

NEW YORK (CP) — John Kennedy received a tumultuous ticker-tape welcome by 1,000,000 New Yorkers Wednesday while Richard Nixon was comparatively ignored as he moved in from a lukewarm rally in Delaware.

"I believe in equal ticker tape," said Vice-President Nixon with a grin when told that Democratic mayor Robert Wagner had offered Senator Kennedy the city hall steps for a political speech. Nixon, fighting hard for the crucial New York vote, said he hopes Wagner also will arrange a ticker-tape welcome for him in two weeks, just before the Nov. 8 U.S. presidential election.

Police commissioner Stephen Kennedy said the crowd that turned out for the senator appeared to be the biggest since Charles Lindbergh's triumphal return to New York after his solo trans-Atlantic flight in 1927.

Disaster Toll Near 6,000?

Montreal Mudslinging

Mayor Blew Smoke in Queen's Face!

MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign for the municipal election next Monday developed into a mudslinging contest Tuesday night at public meetings of two mayorality candidates.

Ex-mayor Jean Drapeau, who heads the Civic party of Montreal, said Mayor Sarto Fournier "has no manners" and insulted royalty and other dignitaries who had visited Montreal.

He said Sen. Fournier, who ousted him in the 1957 election, had "blown smoke in the face" of Queen Elizabeth during the 1959 Royal Visit to Canada and "made ta-tas to the television audience" while dancing with her.

Sen. Fournier had done nothing in the administration of the city's affairs "except to participate in scandals."

His comments were by way of a reply to Sen. Fournier, who called Mr. Drapeau "the worst hyprocrite in all history" at a public meeting Monday.

Gambler Stuns Court Calls Dice Every Time

MACK ALLAN IN ACTION

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—An accused gambler put on a 20-minute display of dice rolling in court Wednesday to show how he can make the dice come up with any combination of numbers he wants.

While the jury and Judge John Culberton watched, Mack Allen, 38, approached a table with a blanket on it and said confidently:

"I can stand here all day and roll number seven."

Allen not only threw sevens, but made the dice come up with other numbers he called out in advance. But he didn't explain how he did it.

The demonstration was in support of his contention that he did not rob Ralph McKenzie, a truck driver, but won $70 and his watch in a dice game. Decision was delayed.

City Site for Jobless Training School Sought by Province

Education department officials are looking for suitable accommodation in Victoria for a vocational school where unskilled unemployed workmen can learn trades that will help them get jobs.

"I expect the school will be in operation here before the end of the year," said Education Minister Leslie Peterson yesterday. "In fact we will start just as soon as we can find suitable space to rent."

Similar classes are already in full swing in Nanaimo, Vancouver and Burnaby.

The program has two facets —one, to bring the unemployed worker's level up to Grade 10 or higher, and the other, to teach various vocational trades.

A resolution calling for the establishment of such a course in Victoria was recently passed by the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria.

"In view of the present unemployment that prevails throughout Canada it is imperative that all responsible public agencies take such action as is possible to make unemployed people more employable through education and training," said Mr. Peterson.

Courses that will be available in Victoria to unemployed under the crash program include general commercial classes, practical nursing and service trades.

Unemployed chosen for the courses can receive up to $117 a month on top of their unemployment insurance pay. This is for the head of a family. If the family lives at home the grant is $91 a month.

A single man, living at home, can get $52 a month extra and $91 a month if away from home.

Candidates To Face Labor Quiz

Victoria Labor Council last night decided to endorse some candidates in city and municipal elections in Greater Victoria in December.

A special committee will be appointed soon to interview all candidates in Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt. VLC endorsement will be given to candidates recommended by the committee.

The entry into municipal politics parallels the recent affiliation between organized labor and the CCF party in the provincial and federal political fields.

This will be the first year the VLC has taken such action on a broad scale.

In the past the VLC has endorsed a number of candidates in various city and municipal elections, notably VLC secretary A. W. Toone, who contested a city election two years ago.

Forest Industry Faces Worst Market in Years

PORT ALBERNI — Today's market is the worst faced by the forest products industry in over 20 years, according to Ian S. Brand, general manager of the Port Alberni section of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd.

He was speaking at a meeting of the Port Alberni and District Chamber of Commerce.

In his list of measures which could be taken to overcome the situation, Mr. Brand said members of a Chamber of Commerce can do much to assure that Canadian goods enter foreign countries with little or no tariff impediment, and should take every opportunity to make sure that wood is utilized wherever and whenever possible in public buildings, industrial plants, businesses and private residences.

He stressed the importance of the woods industry in the economy of Canada, the province and the Alberni Valley.

Individuals, Mr. Brand said, can help the industry by becoming more familiar with facts about wood and its importance to the community; learn more about wood and its uses; study its advantages and opportunities; realize that wood is the most versatile of all building products.

"The market challenge of today can be met. We most certainly can and will survive this present strenuous period but only with equally strenuous efforts on the part of us all," the speaker said.

Dues Check-Off Issue

Civil Servants Stay Mum In Labor Council Protest

Victoria members of the B.C. Government Employees' Association last night dissociated themselves and their union from Victoria Labor Council's decision to protest the government's halt to union dues check-off.

The VLC adopted a motion protesting "the deplorable action of the B.C. government in removing the B.C. government employees' rights to the dues check-off."

The government decision was announced a week ago when Provincial Secretary Wesley Black attacked the association's affiliation with the B.C. Federation of Labor, which supported the CCF party in the recent provincial election.

"It seems to me that this will become the small end of the wedge," one delegate to last night's meeting said. "If it is legal it will face all our unions."

MOST VIGOROUS

Another told the meeting: "It is something like a couple of gangsters holding a man while another fellow kicks him. . . . We should make the most vigorous protest we can and we should request the B.C. Federation of Labor to protest."

A prepared statement read to the meeting by a delegate from the BCGEA stated:

"On behalf of the provincial government employees in the Victoria branch, I would simply like to state that we feel that because of the rather peculiar position that we find ourselves in, it is desirable to abstain from debate on this subject and that our silence should not imply agreement or disagreement with any decision made or opinion expressed."

Mauled Hunter Empties Gun in Grizzly

NANAIMO—With the mouth of an angry 1,000-pound silver-tip grizzly a scant two feet from him, a terror-stricken hunter managed to fire a shot that knocked the bear over.

Harold Jorgensen, member of a Nanaimo hunting party, told his story Wednesday of a battle to the death with the bear in the Horsefly district, 65 miles from Williams Lake, 250 miles northeast of Victoria.

He said he came upon the seven-foot animal in a small clearing after he had split from the rest of the hunting party.

The bear first walked away then wheeled and charged from about 30 feet. Mr. Jorgensen said he aimed a shot between the bears eyes but it kept coming. Mr. Jorgensen ran into dense bush with the bear in close pursuit.

"The bear ran past me within five feet then swung back. I fired again and he just went up on his hind legs and kept coming. I fired a third time and by then he had reached me.

"He knocked the rifle back into my shoulder, wounding my hand and knocking me over."

With the bear's mouth two feet away, he raised his rifle and fired. The bear fell as the hunter rolled away. Mr. Jorgenson fired again and again.

"I was screaming by this time and ran away to reload my last three shots which were in my pocket."

With one of the last bullets, the bear finally dropped.

Jorgenson said the entire battle probably lasted no more than 30 seconds but that it seemed like an hour.

A doctor who treated the hunter's badly mauled hand at a nearby settlement, entertained his patient during the treatment by assuring him that there were no grizzlies in the area, and that in any case they would not attack a human.

After Jorgenson and members of his party returned to the scene of the attack, they found that the bear had been gorging on a moose carcass when the hunter interrupted the feast.

The bear, whose perforated hide the hunter kept as a souvenir of his near-tragic encounter, measured seven feet in length.

Bondsman Saved $750 by Ruling

DUNCAN — A $200-a-month Penticton section hand was saved $750 here yesterday after a judge ruled that the Crown had made a technical omission in proceedings for bail estreatment.

Brought into court to show why he should not lose $1,000 bail posted on behalf of Edwin William Hendricksen, who failed to reply to a charge of cashing a $126 worthless cheque at Chemainus, was Emil Kacenia.

When the court learned that the Crown had failed to serve a notice of the hearing on Hendricksen, currently under arrest at Toronto, Judge H. J. Swencisky, Vancouver, refused to proceed with the case and ordered an adjournment.

Following a brief adjournment, counsel for the Crown and accused advised the court that an agreement had been reached whereby Kacenia was prepared to forfeit one quarter of the original bond.

Judge Swencisky ordered forfeiture of $250 by the bondsman.

E. D. Strongitharm, counsel for the bondsman, said his client had only posted bail because Hendricksen is the son of the Penticton man's housekeeper.

DUNCAN — A battery of three lawyers, a bevy of policemen, an interpreter and a special Indian Bible were in county court yesterday — all over an appeal against a $1 fine.

Government Agent George H. Hallett earlier launched a frantic search for a Gita Yoga Bible with Hindustani-English wording and found one in the Vancouver court house. It was rushed to Victoria and brought here by a special court reporter.

But the elaborate preparations came to naught when Judge H. J. Swencisky allowed the appeal without hearing any testimony.

Mrs. Lata Prem Mayer, an East Indian, mounted the box as Crown prosecutor Harold Hine's only witness against her husband, Bhagwan Mayer, convicted earlier of assault by striking her on the arm.

Mrs. Mayer's lawyer, A. I. Macdonald, instructed her to ask the court for protection of the Canada Evidence Act, but the judge refused when she would not give him a reason. Her answers, given through interpreter Joe Saroya of Paldi, indicated she did not understand.

Judge Swencisky pointed out the woman was left in a position where she was the man's wife and therefore not compelled to give testimony against him.

She didn't, and happily walked from the courtroom with her husband.

Mayer had been found guilty by Stipendiary Magistrate William Bryant at Ladysmith June 2 and fined $1 and $20 costs. The assault was alleged to have taken place May 15 at Saltair.

Big Charge Arises Out of Small Theft

NANAIMO — A 22-year-old logger who came out of the woods to answer a charge that he took a fender skirt from a car has been charged with a $700 theft.

James Anthony Dickenson, working at Kelsey Bay on the northern part of Vancouver Island, was charged in Nanaimo police court with breaking, entering and theft from the Canadian Legion. The Legion building on Wallace Street was broken into last Sunday morning and looted of liquor and cigarets worth $700.

Dickenson was released on $2,000 bail and remanded for appearance in court Oct. 26.

Brannan Lake Loses Nine in Two Days

NANAIMO—Nine youths have run away from Brannan Lake Boys Industrial School within the past two days. Police said that two boys ran away Tuesday morning, six the same night and one yesterday.

A 12-foot flat bottom, plywood boat powered by a 5½ h.p. engine, reported yesterday afternoon as stolen from here, may have been taken by the youths.

Amnesia, Foul Play Ruled Out in Mystery

NANAIMO — Police have ruled out the possibility of foul play in the disappearance Sept. 24 of 57-year-old Len Quickenden, a federal civil servant employed at the Pacific Biological Station.

Police also doubt that he is a victim of amnesia in view of reports from several doctors here that "true amnesia is a very rare thing."

Quickenden's locked car was found parked near a Nanaimo ferry dock more than three weeks ago, indicating he may have gone to Vancouver. He was not known to have been carrying any large sum of money at the time of his disappearance.

Green to UN:

Slash Red Tape

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada demanded Wednesday that the United Nations slice boldly through the oceans of red tape on disarmament and get down to business on a scientific basis.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green asked the 99-member UN political committee for a broadened attack on disarmament based on progress already made in a 10-nation committee which hit the rocks last June.

SMALLER POWERS

"The ideas of middle and smaller powers—as well as those of the nuclear countries—should be invoked in this strugle to save humanity," said Green.

The Canadian foreign chief urged the UN to go beyond British Prime Minister Macmillan's proposal for an East-West scientific committee to meet first and prepare the ground for political leaders.

SWISS SUGGESTED

He pressed for the appointment of such a committee—or committees—and also stressed the need for a parallel committee to be appointed by the 99-member UN disarmament commission in an advisory capacity.

Green also proposed a neutral chairman for the 10-nation committee - he said a Swiss would be ideal—and he held out the possibility, without explicitly saying so, that so-called neutralist nations should take part in disarmament negotiations.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin repeated the Russian threat of a walk-out Wednesday.

HIGHWAYS MINISTER GAGLARDI
. . . appeal planned

Gaglardi Pays $1,000 Fine

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi was fined $1,000 and a U.S. contractor was sent to prison indefinitely Wednesday for wilful contempt of court.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris handed out the sentences for contempt of a court order he issued a year ago in a tangled legal case involving money owed by a contracting firm which did work for the highways department.

Clyde Thornton of Bonner's Ferry, Idaho, was ordered to prison until he "purges himself of the contempt." In effect, he must pay $25,516 which the original order found his firm owed.

FILED APPEAL

Mr. Gaglardi paid the fine and then filed an appeal. Thornton is expected to file an appeal and seek bail today.

The justice said both men were guilty of "wilful contempt." Mr. Gaglardi had "aided and abetted" Thornton in violation of the order and Thornton and his firm "stood to gain" from the contempt.

"As for you, Gaglardi, your offence is an extremely serious one, but you did not personally gain in this and that is to the good," he said.

He had taken into account that the minister acted on legal advice in sending a cheque. But he criticized Mr. Gaglardi for acting on this advice "in face of a court order."

Mr. Gaglardi "permitted his subordinates to ignore the court order in favor of carrying out the 'practice and policy' of his department."

SEATTLE MAN

The contempt charge was brought by Burton Glazier of Seattle, who had obtained the order $25,516 of funds held by the B.C. government for Union Contractors Ltd. be paid to Montreal Trust Co. as receiver. Thornton was treasurer and vice-president of Union Contractors, which had a contract for a highway project near Revelstoke.

Instead of sending the money to Montreal Trust, the highways department sent $75,000 to Thornton's bank in Bonner's Ferry.

Mr. Justice Norris said Thornton was present when the order was made a year ago, yet failed to notify his bank at Bonner's Ferry not to accept the money or forward it to the trust company.

Unfair for City To Keep Best

By IAN STREET

Trustees last night termed Greater Victoria teachers' demand for salary increases averaging 12 per cent "outrageous and avaricious."

Teachers' representatives, however, showed no indication by the end of a 90-minute negotiating session that they are willing to revise their original figure downward.

SECOND SESSION

Trustees during the second session of the negotiations made no counter offer on salaries. The two parties went on to discuss other clauses in the contract until the session ended.

Kenneth Leeming, chairman of the board's salary committee, said bluntly trustees felt no increase in the basic salary scale for local teachers was justified at a time "when economic conditions in B.C. are not as healthy as they might be."

FAIR, JUST

He said the present teachers' salary scale, established by due and open process of arbitration and accepted as a "fair and just distribution," was considered by the board to be "quite adequate."

Teachers' spokesman V. N. R. Sewell said the school board in the past has encouraged teachers to improve their qualifications and now must "reward" teachers for having done so.

52 PER CENT

He pointed out that at present 52 per cent of Victoria teachers have full university qualifications. At the secondary level, 57 per cent of local teachers have the highest professional qualifications recognized by the department of education — more than any other district.

"This policy of having highly qualified teachers has paid good dividends . . . Victoria students won seven out of the last 10 Governor - General's Gold Medals," said Mr. Sewell.

KEEP BEST

"To continue this level of achievement it will be necessary to keep the best teachers and draw the best teachers to Victoria."

Mr. Leeming said he knew why highly-qualified teachers didn't go to other districts "where they could get more . . . they like living here and are willing to accept a more modest scale in order to enjoy the many advantages Victoria has to offer."

EMBARRASSING

He added: "How embarrassing it would be to all the other school boards in the province if we went up to the salary maxima . . . they would have no teachers at all."

Board chairman W. C. Gelling said he agreed "we should not stress the fact that we should have the finest teachers in B.C. . . . in all fairness to the students in the rest of the province."

RESENT ATTITUDE

Mr. Sewell retorted: "As a taxpayer and the father of four children I rather resent your attitude. Trustees should want to have a very good roster of teachers in Victoria.

"It vexes me, not as a teacher, but as a parent. I don't think we should stand back and let the other districts take all the best teachers."

Clause in Columbia Pact

B.C. May Be Able to Sell Extra Power Back to U.S.

* * *

CCF:

Keep BCE Out

CCF leader Robert Strachan said yesterday that the distribution of Columbia River power must not be put in the hands of the B.C. Electric Co.

"We must also ensure that the benefits of this public power are not lost by an attempt by Wenner-Gren and the B.C. Electric to pool and export public and private power as being the only means whereby the Wenner-Gren promoters can make millions from stock promotion," said Mr. Strachan.

Distribution of the power by the B.C. Electric would "rob the people of the benefits brought about by public development of the Columbia."

The CCF leader said his party had said all along that the Columbia could be developed to produce cheap power under public ownership and the release of the Columbia report "vindicated our stand."

Provincial government will be able to "export" some of the power received under the proposed Columbia River agreement and will almost certainly do so in the initial stages of the $450,000,000 development. (See full details Page 3.)

Lands Minister Ray Williston said it was a matter of either selling the power in the U.S. or "giving it away" and that such an arrangement would continue until all the power could be utilized in B.C.

SOME OPPOSITION

The minister also expressed a fear that while the proposed agreement, details of which were announced yesterday, was "the best possible deal for B.C.," there might be some spirited opposition to the proposals in the U.S.

As payment for this, the U.S. will make available to B.C. 50 per cent of the extra power generated south of the border.

POWER BENEFITS

A clause in the proposed agreement says that, subject to the authorization of the U.S. and Canada, "portions of the power benefits to which Canada is entitled under the treaty may be disposed of within the United States."

This, in effect, would enable B.C. to sell power to the U.S.—a move strongly opposed by the CCF opposition which argues that once power is exported there can be no subsequent turning back because new industries in the U.S. depend on the extra power.

Mr. Williston said utility districts now operating on the Columbia would not be happy about having to give half their extra power to B.C.

"This looks just wonderful on paper but it's not finished yet by a long shot," said the minister.

Kennedy Beats Nixon For New York Cheers

NEW YORK (CP) — John Kennedy received a tumultuous ticker-tape welcome by 1,000,000 New Yorkers Wednesday while Richard Nixon was comparatively ignored as he moved in from a lukewarm rally in Delaware.

"I believe in equal ticker tape," said Vice-President Nixon with a grin when told that Democratic mayor Robert Wagner had offered Senator Kennedy the city hall steps for a political speech. Nixon, fighting hard for the crucial New York vote, said he hopes Wagner also will arrange a ticker-tape welcome for him in two weeks, just before the Nov. 8 U.S. presidential election.

Police commissioner Stephen Kennedy said the crowd that turned out for the senator appeared to be the biggest since Charles Lindbergh's triumphal return to New York after his solo trans-Atlantic flight in 1927.

Montreal Mudslinging

Mayor Blew Smoke in Queen's Face!

Ta-Tas to Television

MONTREAL (CP) — The campaign for the municipal election next Monday developed into a mudslinging contest Tuesday night at public meetings of two mayorality candidates.

Ex-mayor Jean Drapeau, who heads the Civic party of Montreal, said Mayor Sarto Fournier "has no manners" and insulted royalty and other dignitaries who had visited Montreal.

He said Sen. Fournier, who ousted him in the 1957 election, had "blown smoke in the face" of Queen Elizabeth during the 1959 Royal Visit to Canada and "made ta-tas to the television audience" while dancing with her.

Sen. Fournier had done nothing in the administration of the city's affairs "except to participate in scandals."

His comments were by way of a reply to Sen. Fournier, who called Mr. Drapeau "the worst hyprocrite in all history" at a public meeting Monday.

Gambler Stuns Court Calls Dice Every Time

* * *

MACK ALLEN IN ACTION

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—An accused gambler put on a 20-minute display of dice rolling in court Wednesday to show how he can make the dice come up with any combination of numbers he wants.

While the jury and Judge John Culberton watched, Mack Allen, 38, approached a table with a blanket on it and said confidently:

"I can stand here all day and roll number seven."

Allen not only threw sevens, but made the dice come up with other numbers he called out in advance. But he didn't explain how he did it.

The demonstration was in support of his contention that he did not rob Ralph McKenzie, a truck driver, but won $70 and his watch in a dice game. Decision was delayed.
